Treaty opens nuclear test sites to inspection

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev today signed a precedent-setting treaty that will open some Russian nuclear test sites to American inspectors for the first time.

The simultaneous ceremonies here and in Moscow followed 18 months of complex negotiations and may, according to U.S. officials, spur negotiations in Geneva to reach a long-delayed agreement limiting strategic nuclear weapons.

Ford said the treaty "demonstrates that our two countries can soberly negotiate responsible and beneficial agreements despite the difficulty of the challenge."

Terms of the five-year treaty permit American inspectors to visit sites when the Russians conduct certain underground blasts that have potential use for changing the levels of rivers or excavating for minerals.

Years ago, American scientists abandoned the idea of experimenting with underground nuclear explosions for those purposes.

But the Soviets remain interested in such projects, and the treaty limits the megaton level of any single blast for such a purpose to 150 kilotons — the equivalent of 150,000 tons of TNT.

Ford called the treaty "real progress" in the field of arms control and toward "a more stable, peaceful world and a more constructive relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"Pushing back the shadow of nuclear war must be our constant concern," Ford said, describing this as the underlying purpose of all the numerous agreements for constructive cooperation concluded between the United Sates and the Soviet Union in recent years.

Ford urged Senate ratification of the new agreement and of an earlier pact banning underground weapons tests of more than 150 kilotons.

"I welcome the accomplishment we mark here today," Ford said in a statement at the signing ceremony. "I hope it will lead to further achievements in building a stable and just peace for our two peoples and for mankind."

Unknown, but not forgotten

Americans will pause Monday to honor those who have died in the defense of their country. This year, the observance is especially appropriate since it coincides with the nation's Bicentennial celebration, which those countrymen being honored played a role in attaining. The above composite photograph was taken by Tom Beardslee at the cemetery on the battlefield of one of the bloodiest battles fought in Missouri, the Battle of Lexington, in the northwest part of the state. The tomb marks the resting place for five unknown Union soldiers who died in the battle, which took place Sept. 18-20, 1861. The flag flies over all graves in the cemetery, Union and Confederate alike, symbolizing that although they fought on separate sides, they were all Americans.

East Prairie to vote on city manager issue

EAST PRAIRIE — Residents here will vote June 1 in a special election on whether to retain or abolish the present city manager- council form of city government.

With the three- day weekend coming up, political factions in the city are getting in the finishing licks on their campaign for and against city manager- council government.

The present form of city government was voted in six years ago, passing by a narrow margin of 24 votes. State law provides that citizens can petition for a new vote on the issue after six years. The council was petitioned about three months ago for the special election by a group headed by Bill Aycock.

About a month ago another local group headed by Dr. A. L. Weaver, local physician, former mayor and city councilman, organized a campaign to urge voters to retain the council-manager form of government.

This group reportedly has 32 active workers, endorsement of seven local civic clubs and a "vote of confidence" petition signed by 224 local residents.

Both groups have extensively advertised their position in the local newspaper, on radio and billboards.

The "yes" group emphasizes the progress of the city in the past six years made under the council- manager government and the need for fulltime management of city affairs.

The "no" group has stressed the fact that the mayor, chief of police, police judge and city collector are no longer elected and that in their opinion the city could be more effectively operated with the return to the old mayor-alderman system.

Balloting for residents in precinct 1 will be in the council room at the fire stationand residents in precinct 2 will vote at the high school. Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Judges and clerks in precinct 1 include: Nell Bard, Mollie Lee, Bernice Anthony, Norma Marshall, Essie Taylor, Clarice Diets, Willie Adkison, Allene Lucas, Alma Skaggs and Queen Griffith.

In precinct 2 serving as judges and clerks will be Wantona Hayes, Idell Davis, Nina Hunter, Goldie Durbin, Dorothy Clark, Margaret Schneider, Mabel Fussell, Evelyn Denton, Sybil Hise and Grace Emory.

Van Buren man killed in crash

A rural Van Buren man was killed and five other persons were injured in five traffic accidents on area highways Thursday and early today, the highway patrol r reported.

The death brings the yearly total of traffic fatalities on Southeast Missouri roads to 45 as compared to 35 at the same time last year.

Robert Gene Bales, 30, of Route Three, Van Buren, was pronounced dead on arrival at Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff following an accident whih occurred at 1:10 a.m. today on Highway 60, 12 miles northwest of Poplar Bluff.

The patrol said the accident occurred when the westbound pickup truck Bales was driving crossed the center line of the highway and collided head-on with a tractor trailer truck driven east by William Stromatt, 30, of Hendersonville, Tenn.

Stromatt was uninjured.

James H. Miller, 69, of Poplar Bluff received minor injuries in an accident at 11:55 a.m. Thursday on Route T, 5½ miles northeast of Poplar Bluff.

The patrol said the accident occurred when a northbound pickup truck driven by Gary Sanderson, 16, of Poplar Bluff,

Knife-wielding teen robs Quick Shop

A teen-ager armed with a pocket knife took an undetermined amount of money from the Quick Shop on South Main Street at 9:50 p.m. Thursday.

Two store clerks told police the robber was a shabbily dressed teen-ager about 17 or 18 years old who appeared to be drunk or high on drugs.

They said he waited until all the other customers were out of the store and then ordered clerk Debbie Grace, 20, of 406 Sunset Drive, to lie down on the floor and pointed a pocket knife at her.

He then ordered clerk Shirley Smith, 20, of Matthews, to give him the money from the cash register. She told police she handed him all the bills, but that he demanded the change also.

He then ordered her to lie down on the floor and left. Both women said they heard a car leave. Police said there may have been another man waiting in the car outside.

Burglars hit Sikeston firm

Burglars broke into ABE Home Center Inc., 705 Davis Blvd., taking an undetermined amount of cash and assorted tools.

Police said the burglars climbed a fence and used a company truck to ram open an overhead door sometime between 7:30 p.m. Thursday and 6:30 a.m. today.

The cash was taken from drawers in an office and the tools were taken from the sales room. The amount of the loss was not immediately known, police said.

Thieves also entered a storage shed at the Max Tucker home, Route Four, Box 277, taking assorted tools valued at $230.

The theft occurred between noon and 1 p.m. Wednesday.

No trash pickup Monday

Gott sentenced to 5 years

BENTON — Dennis Lee Gott pleaded guilty to armed robbery and stealing over $50 in an appearance today in Scott County Circuit Court before Judge Stanley Grimm of Cape Girardeau, who presided as special judge over the change of venue case from Stoddard County.

Gott was sentenced to five years for armed robbery and two years for stealing over $50, with the sentences to run concurrently in custody of the Department of Corrections.

Liquor licenses suspended

Three Southeast Missouri establishments have had their liquor licenses suspended by the Division of Liquor Control, it was announced this week.

The Hut on Highway 153 at Parma had its license suspended Monday for the remainder of the license year for unlawful sale to a minor, violation of the oath, failing to post license, failing to maintain records and unlawful sale by a minor.

The Rib & Steak House, 1902 Sunset Drive, Poplar Bluff, had its license suspended beginning June 7 for the rest of the license year for giving a false answer on its application.

Floyd's Package Store, Highway 67 North, in Poplar Bluff, has been suspended for eight days, beginning June 7 for unlawful sale to a minor.

Harrington is given 10 years

BENTON — James "Peter Boy" Harrington of Sikeston pleaded guilty Thursday in Scott County Circuit Court before Judge Marshall Craig to a reduced charge of malicious killing in connection with the Sept. 20, 1971, death of Kenneth Ellison of Sikeston.

Judge Craig sentenced Harrington to 10 years in custody of the state Department of Corrections.

In a previous trial, Harrington was found guilty of second-degree murder in January 1974 and received a 40-year sentence on March 25, 1974.

However, in March of this year, the Missouri Supreme Court granted Harrington a new trial due to statements made by the defendant being withheld from his attorneys and prosecution assistance by a private attorney.

Scott County Prosecutor Jim Moore said the charge against Harrington was reduced to malicious killing due to the inacessibility of some of the shooting witnesses. Moore than asked the court that the maximum sentence of 10 years for the charge be assessed.

In another case, William Honihan of Portageville pleaded guilty to an armed robbery on April 5 at the Scott City Shell Service Station and was sentenced to five years in the custody of the Department of Corrections.

An application for probation was taken under advisement.

Matthews marshal, judge quit

MATTHEWS — Apparently differences between the former city marshall, Hubert Bewley and the police Judge, Robert Carlisle, have resulted in both men resigning from office, although each has expressed different views concerning their actions.

Bewley, who resigned May 18 following a session of City Court, blames lack of cooperation from the citizens and failure to receive support in his cases from the police judge as reasons for his vacating the office.

Carlisle said the only reason he resigned Wednesday is because he is holding down three other positions. Carlisle is water and street commissioner and vice president of the park board.

Carlisle said he has other things he needs to be working on and added that the police judge position has "just too much aggravation and too many headaches".

Bewley claims the judge dropped charges against an 18-year- old Matthews boy who was already on probation, and whom Bewley stated had pleaded guilty. Bewley said the charges were dropped after Carlisle saw a notation on the back of the police ticket that the boy had stated to the marshal that the judge had bought beer for him.

Carlisle said court records will show that the boy had pleaded not guilty and that there was insufficient evidence to prosecute. Out of the past 40 cases before him, Carlisle said only two had not been successfully prosecuted, adding that there was insufficient evidence presented by the police.

Carlisle commented that the statement that he had bought beer for the boy was "only gossip" and again there is no evidence to support the accusation. Bewley admitted that he had no proof of the statement, only what the boy had told him.

Don Spradling has been appointed interm marshal and an appointment of a police judge is under consideration by the City Council.

Council okays water line funds

BLOOMFIELD — The City Council Thursday night decided to use public funds to lay water line in a private subdivision, but the decision was not unanimous.

The proposal to do the work in Lick Creek Estates – which would benefit Marvin Smith and Frank Sifford, who are developing the land -- was pushed primarily by Sonny McRoy.

"I've given it a lot of thought," McRoy said. "I think it's a chance to help our town grow."

The other councilmen did not actively discuss the matter, but in the final vote approved it 3-0.

Voting for the project were McRoy, Larry Lancaster and Bill Cowgur. Alderman Jim Hall abstained.

The work will cost the city over $700. City Clerk Joe Lloyd said the money is not included in the budget, but it can be taken from another account.

Flowers brothers sue SeMo officers

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A $200,000 damage suit has been filed by James E. Flowers and Bernie D. Flowers against six Missouri state troopers and the sheriffs and deputies of New Madrid and Pemiscot counties.

The petition, filed April 12 on their own behalf, alleges that following their arrest July 13, 1975 for a robbery in Caruthersville, they were beaten at the Portageville city jail and later at the New Madrid County jail.

The suit also charges that they were denied counsel during questioning and denied phone calls as well as clean clothes, bedding and shower facilities.

U.S. District Judge H. Kenneth Wangelin has ordered the Flowers brothers to make their complaint more definite in response to a request by the Missouri Attorney General.

James Flowers is serving a 20-year sentence at the Missouri State Penitentiary for felonious assault. His brother is serving four years.

The charges grew out of a shootout involving the brothers and police at the ferry in Pemiscot County.

Zoning group okays subdivision request

The Sikeston Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday recommended to the City Council Thursday that a parcel of land along North Ingram Street north of Smith Street be subdivided into six lots.

The request was made by the developer, TVS Industrial Properties Inc., which plans to construct six apartment buildings on the site.

A company spokesman said the developer might wish to sell one or two of the buildings after they are built and wanted the lots subdivided before the buildings are constructed.

Commissioner Linda Steward told the commission that she had received a complaint from a woman whose neighbor was installing a swimming pool but did not plan to put a fence around the pool.

Mrs. Steward said she understood the city has no requirement for a fence around a swimming pool. Mayor Don Fulton agreed, saying no such ordinance is on the city books.

City Manager Charles Church said he would talk to the people building the pool to see if they could be persuaded to build a fence.

Church said today he would compile a report for the commission detailing the severity of the problem and the types of regulations available.

Church said that, to his knowledge, this is the first instance in town where someone was not considering fencing around their pool.

Bob Stearnes was re-elected commission chairman for the coming year, and Ron Grojean was elected vice chairman.

THE LUSAKA DOCTRINE

Henry Kissinger's major policy speech on southern Africa may temporarily satisfy the demands of black Africa and "liberal" opinion in the U.S., but in the longer run it is likely to create more problems rather than solve the existing ones.

The "Lusaka Doctrine," as it is being called, is a complete pandering to expediency, specifically to the demands of blacks living outside of Rhodesia, Southwest Africa, and South Africa. Kissinger would not even set foot in the countries he was talking about, nor did he make any discernible effort to obtain the facts from those who live there. No doubt this was because the presidents of Zambia, Tanzania, Mozambique, Zaire, etc., would have been mortally offended had he done so.

Instead, there is the spectacle of the American Secretary of State bluntly laying down an ultimatum to the Rhodesian whites, telling them that they must turn over power to the black majority within two years or face the "unrelenting opposition of the United States." Will this have the desired shock effect in Salisbury and cause Ian Smith and his people to capitulate? Probably not. For what we are demanding of them is what people throughout history have often resisted to the death: the utter annihilation of their way of life. Whatever judgments outsiders may render — those who do not have to live with the practical effects of their judgments — to Rhodesian whites the Kissinger formula means the end of everything they and their ancestors struggled to build. Nor are they alone, for the evidence is plain that the majority of Rhodesian blacks also want no part of the bloody dictatorship which outsiders are likely to force upon them if white rule is precipitiously overthrown.

And what about the fall-out in the Middle East? If Africans are entitled to "majority rule" in southern Africa, what about the Arabs in Palestine? What irony that in Africa Kissinger will talk to no one but the "liberation movements" whereas in the Middle East it is precisely those groups to which he will not talk.

And while we are on the subject, what about the Soviet colonial empire? Who rules in Georgia, or Azerbaijan, or Kazakhstan, or Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia? Has Kissinger promised the USSR the "unrelenting opposition of the United States" for refusing to grant majority rule?

In an effort to try to outbid the Soviets for African support, Kissinger has set us on a course calculated to destroy our natural allies in southern Africa and create a power vacuum in a highly strategic area. In our view, we have embarked on still another of our "no win" strategies.

OUR SACRED TRUST

While the first Memorial Day was held to commemorate those Union soldiers who died in the Civil War, to most Americans the holiday has become a day of tribute to those who died in all America's wars. It is sobering to list their names: Revolutionary War, War of 1812, Mexican War, War Between the States, Spanish-American War, World Wars I and II, Korean War, and Vietnam.

All had a common purpose: to preserve freedom. While some with historical hindsight might deny the need for some of these conflicts, those who fought believed they were helping to preserve our most cherished right. It is to America's glory that none of the wars sought to expand tertitory or to subjugate others.

The continuing need to maintain a strong national defense is unquestioned. Differences among loyal Americans relate to the level of strength needed to defend our hard won freedoms from attack and to discourage for all time still another war. If we who are the beneficiaries of those who sacrificed their lives in past wars make wise decisions resulting in continued peace, the war dead will, at last, have achieved their goals.

They all echo the words of John Adams after the first war: "Posterity! You will never know how much it cost the present generation to preserve your freedom. I hope you will make good use of it!"

TOILING FOR TAXES

No one is going to notice any difference in his pay check, but May 1 was "Tax Freedom Day." That was the day, according to calculations by the Tax Foundation, Inc., that Americans finished working for the government(s).

Last year, "Tax Freedom Day" was April 30,and the year before that May 4. It moved back in 1975 and 1976 because of the tax cuts enacted by Congress.

It takes two hours and 39 minutes out of an eight-hour working day to pay for all taxes in 1976, says the Foundation. That breaks down into one hour and 41 minutes for federal taxes and 58 minutes for state and local taxes.

In terms of the amount of work to earn the money, taxes are by far the largest item in the average family budget. Housing and household expenses, for example, are one hour and 32 minutes; food and drink one hour and five minutes; transportation 39 minutes; medical care 25 minutes, and recreation 19 minutes.

ECONOMIC SUICIDE

Many see the approaching congressional election as an opportunity for so-called liberals to take control and push ahead with new taxes on profits and on wealth. There will also, no doubt, be proposals for tighter regulation of basic industries in the United States. All programs will be advocated in the name of consumers.

Before leaping off this economic precipice, it would be well to observe what happened in Great Britain. Following that nation's last election, the government proposed boosts in the taxes of corporations and wealthy individuals. The stock market went into precipitous decline; and, according to Business Week, the question now is "...the possibility that the British stock market's function as a capital-raising mechanism for business—especially small and medium-sized companies—could be endangered."

Is this a preview of what will happen in the U.S. if a drive is launched to close all tax breaks that encourage investment and emasculate industrial management with regulation? Voters should look with fear at reformers whose chief targets are the industries and enterprises that are the source of jobs and the foundation of the American system.

XXX

ASK ONE QUESTION

In view of the pace of inflation, a sober statement from the Council of State Chambers of Commerce cautioning Congress and the Administration to go slow on instituting National Health Insurance deserves the most serious consideration. The Council said, "It is to be hoped that in taking final action on proposals for National Health Insurance the Congress and the President will look not only to its desirability from the viewpoint of proponent groups, but also to the relative priority of such insurance among other national needs, to the question of costs, and to the effect on the national economy of financing such costs. These questions deserve a hard look. And not be overlooked is the probable impact of a National Health Insurance program on the already rapidly rising costs of health care."

The Council noted the cost figures on national health care proposals now before Congress. The most costly one would be tax-financed and virtually eliminate private health insurance and direct payments for medical care, but at a net additional federal budget cost estimated at up to $75 billion. "Even the Administration's proposal," says the Council, "which would be financed through the private insurance system, is estimated to add $6 billion to federal budget costs in the first full year of operation." The health program, known as the Mills-Kennedy bill, calls for a payroll tax of 4 percent on wages up to $20,000 aper year--an insufficient levy according to the health insurance industry which estimates that the benefit provisions of the bill would require a 4.9 per cent payroll tax in the first year to finance the estimated federal cost of more than $38 billion.

People should now ask themselves one question as they see their standard of living and savings eaten away by inflation and witness the increasingly desperate plight of the millions of pensioners already dependent upon existing government welfare programs. Will another costly federal program--National Health Insurance--turn out to be illusory and, like its predecessors, a further spur to inflation? It is painfully obvious that huge tax and deficit-financed government welfare programs are becoming unsupportable and a fraud against the very people they are supposed to help.

BATTLE OF THE BUDGET

Money & & Credit reports on the President's budget and economic messages:

The government's fiscal year, as you know, is being changed. Instead of June 30, it will end on Sept. 30, beginning with the next new fiscal year, which will start on October 1, 1976 and run to September 30, 1977. That means the current fiscal year will be 15 months long and will have a whopping budget deficit of roughly $86 billion--$75 billion for the original full fiscal year and an additional $11 billion for the extra three months July through September.

That's bad enough, but we're in a period of business recovery and the President is still talking about a $43 billion deficit for the new fiscal year, 1976-77. Congress, in its present mood, isn't likely to keep the lid on spending that's assumed in the President's budget proposal, which means that the deficit will be larger. The only question is how much larger.

We'd like to make two important points about this badly out-of-balance budget and the basic propositions contained in the President's economic message to Congress.

The first is the horrendous inflationary implications inherent in deficits of the size now being not only tolerated but encouraged by the more liberal-spenders in and out of government who insist that more spending is the answer to our economic problems. Let's recap those figures again: The deficit for fiscal '76 is put at $86 billion. The projected deficit for '77 is $43 billion. Also, let's not forget that the actual deficit for fiscal '75 was $43 billion. So, that's back-to-back deficits totaling $162 billion.

Now currencies all down through history have been destroyed by one means or another. But whatever the means, it always amounted to the same thing in the end: overissuance of money, whether by debasing coins so greater amounts could be struck or, more recently, by printing more paper money. There is no way that the enormous issuance of IOUs by the government can avoid being inflationary in the long run, since this tremendous borrowing is being financed through the banking system. The Federal Reserve's Arthur Burns is clearly concerned about it. Treasury Secretary Simon is. And so is Mr. Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. Admonishing Congress that it should stick within the guidelines proposed by the President, Mr. Burns said recently that if inflation increases this year, "restoration of confidence will probably come to an end."

Unfortunately, there's no avoiding the serious problems these individuals and a few others like them worry about. Inflation is going to be rekindled briefly, we believe, and the economic recovery is going to be snuffed out in due course. And the severe financial problems are going to emerge.

The second point that should be made is equally important. It is this: It's taking bigger and bigger doses of stimuli to keep the economy going.

The massive deficits currently piling up one on top of the other, for as far into the future as we can see, underscore what we've been insisting on. Namely, that the economic base of this country has grown so large in the 30 years since World War II that it's no longer possible to maintain the growth its citizens--and, indeed, its economists and politicians--have taken for granted. Not, that is, without the destructive inflation we now see occurring all around us. In other words, ever-bigger doses of fiscal and monetary stimuli are needed to achieve the accustomed rates of economic growth on today's much larger base. This thesis, which we first began expounding as far back as 1971, is still not generally appreciated. But it explains the clamor to "do something" to boost employment and hypo business that is heard on all sides. "The solution," as always, is said to be still easier money and still more massive spending in excess of revenues.

This is the prescription that is voiced by critics of Ford's budget proposals. And it's put forward by these vociferous critics really as a desperation cure, even they know. Because it's plain for all to see who bother to look at the official figures that the growth in money supply in the last three years--despite occasional, short-lived interruptions--has exceeded anything ever seen before. We've had not only unprecedented stimulus from credit expansion but unprecedented stimulus from spending and to what avail? Surely, the American people have had enough of that political pap.

THE POLITICS OF THE LABOR VOTE

Is the "labor vote" really as monolithic and potent a factor in politics as politicians think it is? It must be, for Republicans as well as Democrats will go to any lengths to avoid alienating union members—or at least to avoid the appearance of doing so.

Take the example of one politician's wife, Mrs. Betty Ford, who would never cross a picket but who managed to slip past striking workers picketing the NBC building in New York to participate in a televised awards ceremony honoring outstanding women.

Or consider a certain Hubert Horatio Humphrey, who was the only presidential candidate (or in his case, "noncandidate") to appear before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington the other day, despite the fact that the convention hotel was being picketed by NBC technicians.

"I'm a strong union person," Humphrey affirmed. "I don't cross picket lines. But I saw no reason not to come here."

What Humphrey actually meant was that he saw no picket line, thanks to an order by a federal judge removing pickets from all but a side entrance to the hotel. Humphrey used the main entrance.

In other words, it's all right to steal a kiss from someone else as long as your sweetheart doesn't see you.

Unfortunately for the other invited candidates, Jimmy Carter, Sen. Henry M. Jackson and Rep. Morris K. Udall, the judge's order came too late for them to exhibit similarly staunch support of unionism. Each of them was forced to answer questions from the editors by telephone, and each was asked what he would have done had he known about the court order.

"I don't know," said Mr. Carter.

"I would have cleared it with the union," said Mr. Udall.

"I would have been here," said Mr. Jackson.

Give each of these gentlemen half a point for honesty, of sorts.

It's really a sad thing, though. Everytime there's a strike, the entire world is immediately divided into two camps. Either you're for the union or you're against it. And if you're a politician, whatever you may believe in your heart, you won't ever, ever cross a picket line—not when the pickets can see you, that is.

We'll know we've found a truly honest politician on the day that one of them has the guts to say that, while he certainly supports the right of union members to strike, he sees no reason why he should become a party to the dispute by joining in a boycott of their employer.

But like Diogenes, we're prepared for a long search.

Two young girls went to work in a large insurance office and wondered which of the men were married. "It's no use asking them," said one, "they won't tell the truth anyway."

The other girl said, "I'll tell you which ones are married the very first rainy day." And she did. The married men wiped their feet on the doormat. The single men didn't.

Why No Probe?

Confidential reports indicate $5 billion Welfare-Medicaid yearly ripoff

WASHINGTON— Just the other day, new Health, Education and Welfare Department studies confirmed reports in this column of vast welfare-medicaid ripoffs. The studies officially "disclosed" an annual loss, through waste, of some $1 billion.

The New York Times treated the item casually in a story buried deep in the paper. And that's deep. If the Pentagon had misspent or had permitted a billion dollars to be stolen in one year, the report would have been right' up front under an eight-column banner. There's an apparent reluctance to point fingers at welfare thievery, waste and sheer ineligibility.

Yet not until there whips up a national furor and fury over the awesome theft and special Senate select committee digs into the handling of over $25 billion in welfare and medical relief can the full story be told.

The billion-dollar theft and wastage of the people's money admitted by HEW officials is as low as an ant's door sill.

And while I'm not eligible for the coming International Mathematical Olympiad, I reckon that the ineligibility error and waste rate is some 20 per cent and that this brings the actual ripoff money to $5 billion a year.

Look at these statistics: the annual payment now for aid to families with dependent children runs over $10 billion. And that's a low projection. The yearly medicaid federal expenditure is over $14 billion. There are other forms of payments to welfare "clients."

Some of the ripoff rate, according to top HEW executives, runs to 65 per cent in smaller special relief groups. Some run 23 per cent in the big categories. But there's little doubt that the official publicly released "studies" with their single billion-dollar estimate of "waste" is far under the truth.

In this field I don't need Diogenes's lamp to find an honest -- and permit me the use of the word fearless -- investigator. I almost always turn to the one State Welfare Inspector General in this nation -- New York's Richard Horan -- who is eager for public confrontation with those who refute his charges.

He agrees that the billion-dollar annual loss estimate is low. He is working now on this state's own miserable record. And he estimates a $920 million waste and thievery loss this past year in New York City alone.

Since the federal government supplies some 55 per cent of the dependent children relief funds, this brings the ripoff in this city alone to almost half a billion dollars in federal money.

And there are other sources who prefer anonymity, but who state flatly there are "many" other industrial centes across the nation where the percentage of ineligibility and thievery is as high or higher than New York town. They, too, estimate the overall national welfare misspending at some $5 billion yearly.

One of these sources complains angrily that "we know this, we tell the federals and the state authorities but we can't get anything done because of the sensitivity in any area where investigators could be accused of harassing the poor."

Why can't we have the facts from the directors of the HEW Social and Rehabilitation Services? Who has monitored the growth of state and federal medicaid payments from $2.3 billion in fiscal 1967 to $12.1 billion in fiscal 1975? The figure is much higher today.

Who has kept under surveillance the spurt of similar federal and state funds in the basic welfare program, which is the aid to families with dependent children --a spurt from $1.7 billion in 1966 to an estimated $9.5 billion in the 1976 fiscal year?

And the other special supplementary income relief payments are so complex and difficult to trace accurately that no figure can be used with certainty except to say that it, too, is in the billions.

Apparently, until recently, virtually no one has ridden shotgun on the welfare monies as passionately as Congressmen have pursued the funds spent by the Pentagon, the FBI and the CIA. For example, a series of significant welfare reform amendments to the Social Security Act were passed in 1967 and 1972. Manyh of these have been ignored by HEW – though the Congress passed them to "control the costs of health (medicaid -- VR) programs."

Says the General Accounting Office, "The section by section analysis shows that HEW was slow in implementing many of the provisions, often taking one or more years after the effective date of the section to implement it by regultion."

And, "In fact, even though the 1972 amendments have been law for more than three years, several of its provisions have not yet been implemented." Why?

There's been no investigation. Why have the HEW officials been permitted to ignore Congress while hundreds of millions of dollars which could have been saved have been wasted and stolen?

Why no outcry?

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Hill GOP Chiefs Meet Ford to plot 'Stop Ron' Course
with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON— In the strictest of secrecy, Republican congressional leaders huddled with President Ford a few days ago to discuss how to stop Ronald Reagan. We have obtained a copy of the secret minutes.

"Let's talk politics, real plain," House Republican leader John Rhodes began the discussion. He opposed engaging Reagan in a debate over the Panama Canal. This would be "chasing the rainbow," said Rhodes. "We ought to be stressing peace and the economy."

"We've been at fault in not pressing the affirmative issues more strongly," agreed the President.

Rhodes, a nondescript man with a rather featureless, forgettable face, also suggested pointedly that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has become a political liability. Some of Kissinger's statements, said the Arizona conservative, hadn't been helpful.

Sen. Carl Curtis, R.-Neb., a short, balding, toadish man who gave up his conservative wardrobe for bright doubleknits and natty shirts after his 1972 remarriage, disagreed about the Panama Canal.

"No issue is a phony issue which motivates the people," he contended. "I suggest we need an ambassador to go down there and argue a firm position for the United States."

"Maybe you could restructure your position on Panama," Rep. James Quillen, R.-Tenn., an unreconstructed conservative, suggeted to the President.

"The Panama Canal is a simplistic issue," countered Rhodes. "Why not say, 'I have no intention of giving up the right of lease and defense of the canal?"

"The people down there are worried," insisted Curtis. "People in the U.S. are worried."

Rep. Louis Frey Jr., R.-Fla., a cautious conservative, agreed with Rhodes about Kissinger. "People are not convinced that the President is running our foreign policy," said Frey.

But Sen. William Brock, R.-Tenn., a handsome millionaire with dark wavy hair, a nervous grin and a few congenial wrinkles, urged the President to go on the attack against the Democratic Congress. "Your issue is the Congress," Brock told the President.

The runtish, roosterish Sen. John Tower, R.-Texas, agreed that the "anti-Washington syndrome" should be directed against Congress. "Our effort to change the composition of Congress is where the emphasis belongs," he said.

Sen. Milton Young, R.-N.D., who at age 78 isn't young any more, also gave echo to this strategy. "People are mad at Congress," he said. "I'd take out (against) the Democaatic Congress."

Whatever the President did, Rep. Elford Cederberg, R.-Mich., cautioned him against reacting all the time to Reagan.

"The media is ready to pounce (on you)," agreed Rep. John Anderson, R.-Ill., "if you seem to be devising strategies simply to woo the right."

"Reagan has seized on our problem," said Brock. "We have not seized on his." Coming back to his proposal that Ford campaign against Congress, the senator suggested this was an issue that Reagan "can't deal with" as effectively as the President can.

At the opening of the secret strategy session, Anderson called upon his colleagues to swear their political allegiance to the President.

"We haven't been fighting hard enough for you," Anderson told Ford. "If it's in order, I'd like to move a resolution that the leadership fully supports you."

Sen. Hugh Scott, the portly Senate Republican leader, playfully too k the gavel away from the President. "I'll preside for a minute, if I may," said Scott. "Is there a second?"

Sen. Tower, squirming awkwardly in Vice President Nelson Rockefeller's chair, piped up: "I'll second. But will someone explain why I'm sitting in Rocky's chair?"

"All in favor?" Scott asked for a vote. It was unanimous.

Otherwise, the political powwow ended without any positive results. As Quillen asked plaintively: "Why can't we get our own fresh issues?"

CONFLICT OF INTEREST: The Food and Drug Administration has awarded a $59,000 grant to the Nutrition Today Society for developing teaching aides. The government project officer who handled the grant is Dr. Marylyn Stephenson, who happens also to be a staunch member of the society that got the grant. Moreover, one of her bosses, Dr. Allan Forbes, is listed as a director of the society.

Spokesmen for both Food and Drug and Nutrition Today insist there is nothing improper about the relationship or the progress underthe grtant.

FUTURE KING?: Our associate Joe Spear reports from Riyadh that Saudi Arabia's 35-year-old Foreign Minister Saud, tall, handsome, articulate, educated at Princeton, "is being groomed for the throne."

Spear describes the young foreign minister as "impressive," with "an intimate grasp of the issues."

Treaty opens nuclear test sites to inspection

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev today signed a precedent-setting treaty that will open some Russian nuclear test sites to American inspectors for the first time.

The simultaneous ceremonies here and in Moscow followed 18 months of complex negotiations and may, according to U.S. officials, spur negotiations in Geneva to reach a long-delayed agreement limiting strategic nuclear weapons.

Ford said the treaty "demonstrates that our two countries can soberly negotiate responsible and beneficial agreements despite the difficulty of the challenge."

Terms of the five-year treaty permit American inspectors to visit sites when the Russians conduct certain underground blasts that have potential use for changing the levels of rivers or excavating for minerals.

Years ago, American scientists abandoned the idea of experimenting with underground nuclear explosions for those purposes.

But the Soviets remain interested in such projects, and the treaty limits the megaton level of any single blast for such a purpose to 150 kilotons — the equivalent of 150,000 tons of TNT.

Ford called the treaty "real progress" in the field of arms control and toward "a more stable, peaceful world and a more constructive relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"Pushing back the shadow of nuclear war must be our constant concern," Ford said, describing this as the underlying purpose of all the numerous agreements for constructive cooperation concluded between the United Sates and the Soviet Union in recent years.

Ford urged Senate ratification of the new agreement and of an earlier pact banning underground weapons tests of more than 150 kilotons.

"I welcome the accomplishment we mark here today," Ford said in a statement at the signing ceremony. "I hope it will lead to further achievements in building a stable and just peace for our two peoples and for mankind."

East Prairie to vote on city manager issue

EAST PRAIRIE — Residents here will vote June 1 in a special election on whether to retain or abolish the present city manager- council form of city government.

With the three- day weekend coming up, political factions in the city are getting in the finishing licks on their campaign for and against city manager- council government.

The present form of city government was voted in six years ago, passing by a narrow margin of 24 votes. State law provides that citizens can petition for a new vote on the issue after six years. The council was petitioned about three months ago for the special election by a group headed by Bill Aycock.

About a month ago another local group headed by Dr. A. L. Weaver, local physician, former mayor and city councilman, organized a campaign to urge voters to retain the council-manager form of government.

This group reportedly has 32 active workers, endorsement of seven local civic clubs and a "vote of confidence" petition signed by 224 local residents.

Both groups have extensively advertised their position in the local newspaper, on radio and billboards.

The "yes" group emphasizes the progress of the city in the past six years made under the council- manager government and the need for fulltime management of city affairs.

The "no" group has stressed the fact that the mayor, chief of police, police judge and city collector are no longer elected and that in their opinion the city could be more effectively operated with the return to the old mayor-alderman system.

Balloting for residents in precinct 1 will be in the council room at the fire stationand residents in precinct 2 will vote at the high school. Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Judges and clerks in precinct 1 include: Nell Bard, Mollie Lee, Bernice Anthony, Norma Marshall, Essie Taylor, Clarice Diets, Willie Adkison, Allene Lucas, Alma Skaggs and Queen Griffith.

In precinct 2 serving as judges and clerks will be Wantona Hayes, Idell Davis, Nina Hunter, Goldie Durbin, Dorothy Clark, Margaret Schneider, Mabel Fussell, Evelyn Denton, Sybil Hise and Grace Emory.

A rural Van Buren man was killed and five other persons were injured in five traffic accidents on area highways Thursday and early today, the highway patrol r reported.

The death brings the yearly total of traffic fatalities on Southeast Missouri roads to 45 as compared to 35 at the same time last year.

Robert Gene Bales, 30, of Route Three, Van Buren, was pronounced dead on arrival at Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff following an accident whih occurred at 1:10 a.m. today on Highway 60, 12 miles northwest of Poplar Bluff.

The patrol said the accident occurred when the westbound pickup truck Bales was driving crossed the center line of the highway and collided head-on with a tractor trailer truck driven east by William Stromatt, 30, of Hendersonville, Tenn.

Stromatt was uninjured.

James H. Miller, 69, of Poplar Bluff received minor injuries in an accident at 11:55 a.m. Thursday on Route T, 5½ miles northeast of Poplar Bluff.

Unknown, but not forgotten

Americans will pause Monday to honor those who have died in the defense of their country. This year, the observance is especially appropriate since it coincides with the nation's Bicentennial celebration, which those countrymen being honored played a role in attaining. The above composite photograph was taken by Tom Beardslee at the cemetery on the battlefield of one of the bloodiest battles fought in Missouri, the Battle of Lexington, in the northwest part of the state. The tomb marks the resting place for five unknown Union soldiers who died in the battle, which took place Sept. 18-20, 1861. The flag flies over all graves in the cemetery, Union and Confederate alike, symbolizing that although they fought on separate sides, they were all Americans.

Knife-wielding teen robs Quick Shop

A teen-ager armed with a pocket knife took an undetermined amount of money from the Quick Shop on South Main Street at 9:50 p.m. Thursday.

Two store clerks told police the robber was a shabbily dressed teen-ager about 17 or 18 years old who appeared to be drunk or high on drugs.

They said he waited until all the other customers were out of the store and then ordered clerk Debbie Grace, 20, of 406 Sunset Drive, to lie down on the floor and pointed a pocket knife at her.

He then ordered clerk Shirley Smith, 20, of Matthews, to give him the money from the cash register. She told police she handed him all the bills, but that he demanded the change also.

He then ordered her to lie down on the floor and left. Both women said they heard a car leave. Police said there may have been another man waiting in the car outside.

Burglars hit Sikeston firm

Burglars broke into ABE Home Center Inc., 705 Davis Blvd., taking an undetermined amount of cash and assorted tools.

Police said the burglars climbed a fence and used a company truck to ram open an overhead door sometime between 7:30 p.m. Thursday and 6:30 a.m. today.

The cash was taken from drawers in an office and the tools were taken from the sales room. The amount of the loss was not immediately known, police said.

Thieves also entered a storage shed at the Max Tucker home, Route Four, Box 277, taking assorted tools valued at $230.

The theft occurred between noon and 1 p.m. Wednesday.

No trash pickup Monday

There will be no trash pickup Monday, due to the Memorial Day holiday, according to City Manager Charles Church.

Regular pickups will resume Tuesday, he said.

Gott sentenced to 5 years

BENTON — Dennis Lee Gott pleaded guilty to armed robbery and stealing over $50 in an appearance today in Scott County Circuit Court before Judge Stanley Grimm of Cape Girardeau, who presided as special judge over the change of venue case from Stoddard County.

Gott was sentenced to five years for armed robbery and two years for stealing over $50, with the sentences to run concurrently in custody of the Department of Corrections.

Liquor licenses suspended

Three Southeast Missouri establishments have had their liquor licenses suspended by the Division of Liquor Control, it was announced this week.

The Hut on Highway 153 at Parma had its license suspended Monday for the remainder of the license year for unlawful sale to a minor, violation of the oath, failing to post license, failing to maintain records and unlawful sale by a minor.

The Rib & Steak House, 1902 Sunset Drive, Poplar Bluff, had its license suspended beginning June 7 for the rest of the license year for giving a false answer on its application.

Floyd's Package Store, Highway 67 North, in Poplar Bluff, has been suspended for eight days, beginning June 7 for unlawful sale to a minor.

Harrington is given 10 years

BENTON — James "Peter Boy" Harrington of Sikeston pleaded guilty Thursday in Scott County Circuit Court before Judge Marshall Craig to a reduced charge of malicious killing in connection with the Sept. 20, 1971, death of Kenneth Ellison of Sikeston.

Judge Craig sentenced Harrington to 10 years in custody of the state Department of Corrections.

In a previous trial, Harrington was found guilty of second-degree murder in January 1974 and received a 40-year sentence on March 25, 1974.

However, in March of this year, the Missouri Supreme Court granted Harrington a new trial due to statements made by the defendant being withheld from his attorneys and prosecution assistance by a private attorney.

Scott County Prosecutor Jim Moore said the charge against Harrington was reduced to malicious killing due to the inacessibility of some of the shooting witnesses. Moore than asked the court that the maximum sentence of 10 years for the charge be assessed.

In another case, William Honihan of Portageville pleaded guilty to an armed robbery on April 5 at the Scott City Shell Service Station and was sentenced to five years in the custody of the Department of Corrections.

An application for probation was taken under advisement.

Matthews marshal, judge quit

MATTHEWS — Apparently differences between the former city marshall, Hubert Bewley and the police Judge, Robert Carlisle, have resulted in both men resigning from office, although each has expressed different views concerning their actions.

Bewley, who resigned May 18 following a session of City Court, blames lack of cooperation from the citizens and failure to receive support in his cases from the police judge as reasons for his vacating the office.

Carlisle said the only reason he resigned Wednesday is because he is holding down three other positions. Carlisle is water and street commissioner and vice president of the park board.

Carlisle said he has other things he needs to be working on and added that the police judge position has "just too much aggravation and too many headaches".

Bewley claims the judge dropped charges against an 18-year- old Matthews boy who was already on probation, and whom Bewley stated had pleaded guilty. Bewley said the charges were dropped after Carlisle saw a notation on the back of the police ticket that the boy had stated to the marshal that the judge had bought beer for him.

Carlisle said court records will show that the boy had pleaded not guilty and that there was insufficient evidence to prosecute. Out of the past 40 cases before him, Carlisle said only two had not been successfully prosecuted, adding that there was insufficient evidence presented by the police.

Carlisle commented that the statement that he had bought beer for the boy was "only gossip" and again there is no evidence to support the accusation. Bewley admitted that he had no proof of the statement, only what the boy had told him.

Don Spradling has been appointed interm marshal and an appointment of a police judge is under consideration by the City Council.

Council okays water line funds

BLOOMFIELD — The City Council Thursday night decided to use public funds to lay water line in a private subdivision, but the decision was not unanimous.

The proposal to do the work in Lick Creek Estates – which would benefit Marvin Smith and Frank Sifford, who are developing the land -- was pushed primarily by Sonny McRoy.

"I've given it a lot of thought," McRoy said. "I think it's a chance to help our town grow."

The other councilmen did not actively discuss the matter, but in the final vote approved it 3-0.

Voting for the project were McRoy, Larry Lancaster and Bill Cowgur. Alderman Jim Hall abstained.

The work will cost the city over $700. City Clerk Joe Lloyd said the money is not included in the budget, but it can be taken from another account.

Flowers brothers sue SeMo officers

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A $200,000 damage suit has been filed by James E. Flowers and Bernie D. Flowers against six Missouri state troopers and the sheriffs and deputies of New Madrid and Pemiscot counties.

The petition, filed April 12 on their own behalf, alleges that following their arrest July 13, 1975 for a robbery in Caruthersville, they were beaten at the Portageville city jail and later at the New Madrid County jail.

The suit also charges that they were denied counsel during questioning and denied phone calls as well as clean clothes, bedding and shower facilities.

U.S. District Judge H. Kenneth Wangelin has ordered the Flowers brothers to make their complaint more definite in response to a request by the Missouri Attorney General.

James Flowers is serving a 20-year sentence at the Missouri State Penitentiary for felonious assault. His brother is serving four years.

The charges grew out of a shootout involving the brothers and police at the ferry in Pemiscot County.

Zoning group okays subdivision request

The Sikeston Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday recommended to the City Council Thursday that a parcel of land along North Ingram Street north of Smith Street be subdivided into six lots.

The request was made by the developer, TVS Industrial Properties Inc., which plans to construct six apartment buildings on the site.

A company spokesman said the developer might wish to sell one or two of the buildings after they are built and wanted the lots subdivided before the buildings are constructed.

Commissioner Linda Steward told the commission that she had received a complaint from a woman whose neighbor was installing a swimming pool but did not plan to put a fence around the pool.

Mrs. Steward said she understood the city has no requirement for a fence around a swimming pool. Mayor Don Fulton agreed, saying no such ordinance is on the city books.

City Manager Charles Church said he would talk to the people building the pool to see if they could be persuaded to build a fence.

Church said today he would compile a report for the commission detailing the severity of the problem and the types of regulations available.

Church said that, to his knowledge, this is the first instance in town where someone was not considering fencing around their pool.

Bob Stearnes was re-elected commission chairman for the coming year, and Ron Grojean was elected vice chairman.

Ann Landers

Girl repays rapist

Dear Ann Landers: I've read several letters about rape in your column, plus a lot of front-page articles. Maybe you'd be interested in something I ran across in a magazine I picked up on the bus.

It was under Neat Trick of the Month: A 15-year-old chick was raped by an 18-year-old dude. She played it cool, told him how much she dug it and gave him her phone number. She made a date with him for the next night and when they met at the appointed place, the cops grabbed him.

Excuse me if I'm wrong, but I have always been under the impression that it's impossible to rape a woman who is wiiing. -- Just Wondering In Cassville

Dear Cass: If you are suggesting it isn't rape unless a woman screams and fights back, you're mistaken. The chick realized she was trapped in a no-win situation and decided to outsmart the rapist, which is exactly what she did.

Five will get you ten if that case was tried in court, the son-of-a-gun got off on grounds she was a willing partner. Unless a woman has two black eyes, a busted jaw and six teeth missing, the court assumes she "dug it." The way rapists go free in our country is a national disgrace.

Dear Ann Landers: I need an answer to a problem that has been bothering me for a long time. It's an in-law. Not a father-in-law or a mother-in-law, but a little kid. He's our nephew -- belongs to my husband's sister.

We dread family get-togethers because of this child. He interrupts adult conversations, is mouthy, insolent and respects no one. He beats up on his cousins and some smaller kid always ends up in need of first aid.

His parents make no attempt whatever to discipline him. My husband says we should not interfere. I say if it's our house we have a right to insist on good behavior. May we have your opinion? -- Headache In Holyoke

Dear Head: When parents refuse to discipline a child and he misbehaves outside the home, the host or hostess has every right to take over and straighten the child out.

You'd be surprised how fast the youngster will shape up. Kids don't enjoy running wild. They want to be told exactly what the limits are. So hop to it.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious -- lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "They Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Mrs. Bond visits Sikeston

Missouri Delta Community Hospital Administrator Harold Jones and Carolyn Bond, wife of Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond, watch cardiac monitors in the intensive care unit of the hospital.

Carolyn Bond, wife of Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond, made an official visit to Sikeston Thursday on her husband's behalf.

Upon her arrival in Sikeston, Mrs. Bond was received at a private tea in the home of Mrs. Burt Rowe Jr. on North Ridge Road. Mrs. Bond discussed several of her husband's accomplishments during his four years as governor.

"Kit has worked hard to bring state government to the people," she said, citing her husband's support for the open meetings law and campaign reform measures.

She also told the group about the restoration of the Governor's Mansion in Jefferson City, which she believes can be a means of teaching Missouri's youth about the state's history.

"You can't live there long and not grow to love the building," she added.

Following the tea, Mrs. Bond made a tour of the emergency medical services at Missouri Delta Community Hospital. She took special interest in four ambulances which the hospital acquired as a result of community efforts and federal funds disbursed by the state, which her husband was instrumental in procuring.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — I live alone and found it difficult to open a three pound can of coffee until I came up with the idea of using an opener such as one which opens fruit juice cans. I put a good size hole on each side of the top. I can then pour out the needed amount of coffee and still have the plastic lid to cover the top. —RUBY.

DEAR POLLY — We do not smoke so no cigars were passed out when our children were born. I came up with the idea of using personalized pencils to announce the arrival of our second. We bought such pencils with half bearing the name we had chosen for a boy and half with our favored girl's name. As my husband's work mates discovered these pencils on their desks they got the message and had something useful besides. The kids are happy to receive the "inaccurate" pencils for their own use. —MRS.R.S.S.

DEAR POLLY — When saving a used razor blade put it in a plastic medicine bottle and it will be safe in the medicine cabinet. —HELEN.

THE LUSAKA DOCTRINE

Henry Kissinger's major policy speech on southern Africa may temporarily satisfy the demands of black Africa and "liberal" opinion in the U.S., but in the longer run it is likely to create more problems rather than solve the existing ones.

The "Lusaka Doctrine," as it is being called, is a complete pandering to expediency, specifically to the demands of blacks living outside of Rhodesia, Southwest Africa, and South Africa. Kissinger would not even set foot in the countries he was talking about, nor did he make any discernible effort to obtain the facts from those who live there. No doubt this was because the presidents of Zambia, Tanzania, Mozambique, Zaire, etc., would have been mortally offended had he done so.

Instead, there is the spectacle of the American Secretary of State bluntly laying down an ultimatum to the Rhodesian whites, telling them that they must turn over power to the black majority within two years or face the "unrelenting opposition of the United States." Will this have the desired shock effect in Salisbury and cause Ian Smith and his people to capitulate? Probably not. For what we are demanding of them is what people throughout history have often resisted to the death: the utter annihilation of their way of life. Whatever judgments outsiders may render — those who do not have to live with the practical effects of their judgments — to Rhodesian whites the Kissinger formula means the end of everything they and their ancestors struggled to build. Nor are they alone, for the evidence is plain that the majority of Rhodesian blacks also want no part of the bloody dictatorship which outsiders are likely to force upon them if white rule is precipitiously overthrown.

And what about the fall-out in the Middle East? If Africans are entitled to "majority rule" in southern Africa, what about the Arabs in Palestine? What irony that in Africa Kissinger will talk to no one but the "liberation movements" whereas in the Middle East it is precisely those groups to which he will not talk.

And while we are on the subject, what about the Soviet colonial empire? Who rules in Georgia, or Azerbaijan, or Kazakhstan, or Latvia, Lithuania, and Estonia? Has Kissinger promised the USSR the "unrelenting opposition of the United States" for refusing to grant majority rule?

In an effort to try to outbid the Soviets for African support, Kissinger has set us on a course calculated to destroy our natural allies in southern Africa and create a power vacuum in a highly strategic area. In our view, we have embarked on still another of our "no win" strategies.

OUR SACRED TRUST

While the first Memorial Day was held to commemorate those Union soldiers who died in the Civil War, to most Americans the holiday has become a day of tribute to those who died in all America's wars. It is sobering to list their names: Revolutionary War, War of 1812, Mexican War, War Between the States, Spanish-American War, World Wars I and II, Korean War, and Vietnam.

All had a common purpose: to preserve freedom. While some with historical hindsight might deny the need for some of these conflicts, those who fought believed they were helping to preserve our most cherished right. It is to America's glory that none of the wars sought to expand tertitory or to subjugate others.

The continuing need to maintain a strong national defense is unquestioned. Differences among loyal Americans relate to the level of strength needed to defend our hard won freedoms from attack and to discourage for all time still another war. If we who are the beneficiaries of those who sacrificed their lives in past wars make wise decisions resulting in continued peace, the war dead will, at last, have achieved their goals.

They all echo the words of John Adams after the first war: "Posterity! You will never know how much it cost the present generation to preserve your freedom. I hope you will make good use of it!"

TOILING FOR TAXES

No one is going to notice any difference in his pay check, but May 1 was "Tax Freedom Day." That was the day, according to calculations by the Tax Foundation, Inc., that Americans finished working for the government(s).

Last year, "Tax Freedom Day" was April 30,and the year before that May 4. It moved back in 1975 and 1976 because of the tax cuts enacted by Congress.

It takes two hours and 39 minutes out of an eight-hour working day to pay for all taxes in 1976, says the Foundation. That breaks down into one hour and 41 minutes for federal taxes and 58 minutes for state and local taxes.

In terms of the amount of work to earn the money, taxes are by far the largest item in the average family budget. Housing and household expenses, for example, are one hour and 32 minutes; food and drink one hour and five minutes; transportation 39 minutes; medical care 25 minutes, and recreation 19 minutes.

ECONOMIC SUICIDE

Many see the approaching congressional election as an opportunity for so-called liberals to take control and push ahead with new taxes on profits and on wealth. There will also, no doubt, be proposals for tighter regulation of basic industries in the United States. All programs will be advocated in the name of consumers.

Before leaping off this economic precipice, it would be well to observe what happened in Great Britain. Following that nation's last election, the government proposed boosts in the taxes of corporations and wealthy individuals. The stock market went into precipitous decline; and, according to Business Week, the question now is "...the possibility that the British stock market's function as a capital-raising mechanism for business—especially small and medium-sized companies—could be endangered."

Is this a preview of what will happen in the U.S. if a drive is launched to close all tax breaks that encourage investment and emasculate industrial management with regulation? Voters should look with fear at reformers whose chief targets are the industries and enterprises that are the source of jobs and the foundation of the American system.

XXX

ASK ONE QUESTION

In view of the pace of inflation, a sober statement from the Council of State Chambers of Commerce cautioning Congress and the Administration to go slow on instituting National Health Insurance deserves the most serious consideration. The Council said, "It is to be hoped that in taking final action on proposals for National Health Insurance the Congress and the President will look not only to its desirability from the viewpoint of proponent groups, but also to the relative priority of such insurance among other national needs, to the question of costs, and to the effect on the national economy of financing such costs. These questions deserve a hard look. And not be overlooked is the probable impact of a National Health Insurance program on the already rapidly rising costs of health care."

The Council noted the cost figures on national health care proposals now before Congress. The most costly one would be tax-financed and virtually eliminate private health insurance and direct payments for medical care, but at a net additional federal budget cost estimated at up to $75 billion. "Even the Administration's proposal," says the Council, "which would be financed through the private insurance system, is estimated to add $6 billion to federal budget costs in the first full year of operation." The health program, known as the Mills-Kennedy bill, calls for a payroll tax of 4 percent on wages up to $20,000 aper year--an insufficient levy according to the health insurance industry which estimates that the benefit provisions of the bill would require a 4.9 per cent payroll tax in the first year to finance the estimated federal cost of more than $38 billion.

People should now ask themselves one question as they see their standard of living and savings eaten away by inflation and witness the increasingly desperate plight of the millions of pensioners already dependent upon existing government welfare programs. Will another costly federal program--National Health Insurance--turn out to be illusory and, like its predecessors, a further spur to inflation? It is painfully obvious that huge tax and deficit-financed government welfare programs are becoming unsupportable and a fraud against the very people they are supposed to help.

BATTLE OF THE BUDGET

Money & & Credit reports on the President's budget and economic messages:

The government's fiscal year, as you know, is being changed. Instead of June 30, it will end on Sept. 30, beginning with the next new fiscal year, which will start on October 1, 1976 and run to September 30, 1977. That means the current fiscal year will be 15 months long and will have a whopping budget deficit of roughly $86 billion--$75 billion for the original full fiscal year and an additional $11 billion for the extra three months July through September.

That's bad enough, but we're in a period of business recovery and the President is still talking about a $43 billion deficit for the new fiscal year, 1976-77. Congress, in its present mood, isn't likely to keep the lid on spending that's assumed in the President's budget proposal, which means that the deficit will be larger. The only question is how much larger.

We'd like to make two important points about this badly out-of-balance budget and the basic propositions contained in the President's economic message to Congress.

The first is the horrendous inflationary implications inherent in deficits of the size now being not only tolerated but encouraged by the more liberal-spenders in and out of government who insist that more spending is the answer to our economic problems. Let's recap those figures again: The deficit for fiscal '76 is put at $86 billion. The projected deficit for '77 is $43 billion. Also, let's not forget that the actual deficit for fiscal '75 was $43 billion. So, that's back-to-back deficits totaling $162 billion.

Now currencies all down through history have been destroyed by one means or another. But whatever the means, it always amounted to the same thing in the end: overissuance of money, whether by debasing coins so greater amounts could be struck or, more recently, by printing more paper money. There is no way that the enormous issuance of IOUs by the government can avoid being inflationary in the long run, since this tremendous borrowing is being financed through the banking system. The Federal Reserve's Arthur Burns is clearly concerned about it. Treasury Secretary Simon is. And so is Mr. Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. Admonishing Congress that it should stick within the guidelines proposed by the President, Mr. Burns said recently that if inflation increases this year, "restoration of confidence will probably come to an end."

Unfortunately, there's no avoiding the serious problems these individuals and a few others like them worry about. Inflation is going to be rekindled briefly, we believe, and the economic recovery is going to be snuffed out in due course. And the severe financial problems are going to emerge.

The second point that should be made is equally important. It is this: It's taking bigger and bigger doses of stimuli to keep the economy going.

The massive deficits currently piling up one on top of the other, for as far into the future as we can see, underscore what we've been insisting on. Namely, that the economic base of this country has grown so large in the 30 years since World War II that it's no longer possible to maintain the growth its citizens--and, indeed, its economists and politicians--have taken for granted. Not, that is, without the destructive inflation we now see occurring all around us. In other words, ever-bigger doses of fiscal and monetary stimuli are needed to achieve the accustomed rates of economic growth on today's much larger base. This thesis, which we first began expounding as far back as 1971, is still not generally appreciated. But it explains the clamor to "do something" to boost employment and hypo business that is heard on all sides. "The solution," as always, is said to be still easier money and still more massive spending in excess of revenues.

This is the prescription that is voiced by critics of Ford's budget proposals. And it's put forward by these vociferous critics really as a desperation cure, even they know. Because it's plain for all to see who bother to look at the official figures that the growth in money supply in the last three years--despite occasional, short-lived interruptions--has exceeded anything ever seen before. We've had not only unprecedented stimulus from credit expansion but unprecedented stimulus from spegding and to what avail? Surely, the American people have had enough of that political pap.

XXX

THE POLITICS OF THE LABOR VOTE

Is the "labor vote" really as monolithic and potent a factor in politics as politicians think it is? It must be, for Republicans as well as Democrats will go to any lengths to avoid alienating union members—or at least to avoid the appearance of doing so.

Take the example of one politician's wife, Mrs. Betty Ford, who would never cross a picket but who managed to slip past striking workers picketing the NBC building in New York to participate in a televised awards ceremony honoring outstanding women.

Or consider a certain Hubert Horatio Humphrey, who was the only presidential candidate (or in his case, "noncandidate") to appear before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington the other day, despite the fact that the convention hotel was being picketed by NBC technicians.

"I'm a strong union person," Humphrey affirmed. "I don't cross picket lines. But I saw no reason not to come here."

What Humphrey actually meant was that he saw no picket line, thanks to an order by a federal judge removing pickets from all but a side entrance to the hotel. Humphrey used the main entrance.

In other words, it's all right to steal a kiss from someone else as long as your sweetheart doesn't see you.

Unfortunately for the other invited candidates, Jimmy Carter, Sen. Henry M. Jackson and Rep. Morris K. Udall, the judge's order came too late for them to exhibit similarly staunch support of unionism. Each of them was forced to answer questions from the editors by telephone, and each was asked what he would have done had he known about the court order.

"I don't know," said Mr. Carter.

"I would have cleared it with the union," said Mr. Udall.

"I would have been here," said Mr. Jackson.

Give each of these gentlemen half a point for honesty, of sorts.

It's really a sad thing, though. Everytime there's a strike, the entire world is immediately divided into two camps. Either you're for the union or you're against it. And if you're a politician, whatever you may believe in your heart, you won't ever, ever cross a picket line—not when the pickets can see you, that is.

We'll know we've found a truly honest politician on the day that one of them has the guts to say that, while he certainly supports the right of union members to strike, he sees no reason why he should become a party to the dispute by joining in a boycott of their employer.

But like Diogenes, we're prepared for a long search.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Hill GOP Chiefs Meet
Ford to plot
'Stop Ron' Course

with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON— In the strictest of secrecy, Republican congressional leaders huddled with President Ford a few days ago to discuss how to stop Ronald Reagan. We have obtained a copy of the secret minutes.

"Let's talk politics, real plain," House Republican leader John Rhodes began the discussion. He opposed engaging Reagan in a debate over the Panama Canal. This would be "chasing the rainbow," said Rhodes. "We ought to be stressing peace and the economy."

"We've been at fault in not pressing the affirmative issues more strongly," agreed the President.

Rhodes, a nondescript man with a rather featureless, forgettable face, also suggested pointedly that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has become a political liability. Some of Kissinger's statements, said the Arizona conservative, hadn't been helpful.

Sen. Carl Curtis, R.-Neb., a short, balding, toadish man who gave up his conservative wardrobe for bright doubleknits and natty shirts after his 1972 remarriage, disagreed about the Panama Canal.

"No issue is a phony issue which motivates the people," he contended. "I suggest we need an ambassador to go down there and argue a firm position for the United States."

"Maybe you could restructure your position on Panama," Rep. James Quillen, R.-Tenn., an unreconstructed conservative, suggeted to the President.

"The Panama Canal is a simplistic issue," countered Rhodes. "Why not say, 'I have no intention of giving up the right of lease and defense of the canal?"

"The people down there are worried," insisted Curtis. "People in the U.S. are worried."

Rep. Louis Frey Jr., R.-Fla., a cautious conservative, agreed with Rhodes about Kissinger. "People are not convinced that the President is running our foreign policy," said Frey.

But Sen. William Brock, R.-Tenn., a handsome millionaire with dark wavy hair, a nervous grin and a few congenial wrinkles, urged the President to go on the attack against the Democratic Congress. "Your issue is the Congress," Brock told the President.

The runtish, roosterish Sen. John Tower, R.-Texas, agreed that the "anti-Washington syndrome" should be directed against Congress. "Our effort to change the composition of Congress is where the emphasis belongs," he said.

Sen. Milton Young, R.-N.D., who at age 78 isn't young any more, also gave echo to this strategy. "People are mad at Congress," he said. "I'd take out (against) the Democaatic Congress."

Whatever the President did, Rep. Elford Cederberg, R.-Mich., cautioned him against reacting all the time to Reagan.

"The media is ready to pounce (on you)," agreed Rep. John Anderson, R.-Ill., "if you seem to be devising strategies simply to woo the right."

"Reagan has seized on our problem," said Brock. "We have not seized on his." Coming back to his proposal that Ford campaign against Congress, the senator suggested this was an issue that Reagan "can't deal with" as effectively as the President can.

At the opening of the secret strategy session, Anderson called upon his colleagues to swear their political allegiance to the President.

"We haven't been fighting hard enough for you," Anderson told Ford. "If it's in order, I'd like to move a resolution that the leadership fully supports you."

Sen. Hugh Scott, the portly Senate Republican leader, playfully too k the gavel away from the President. "I'll preside for a minute, if I may," said Scott. "Is there a second?"

Sen. Tower, squirming awkwardly in Vice President Nelson Rockefeller's chair, piped up: "I'll second. But will someone explain why I'm sitting in Rocky's chair?"

"All in favor?" Scott asked for a vote. It was unanimous.

Otherwise, the political powwow ended without any positive results. As Quillen asked plaintively: "Why can't we get our own fresh issues?"

CONFLICT OF INTEREST: The Food and Drug Administration has awarded a $59,000 grant to the Nutrition Today Society for developing teaching aides. The government project officer who handled the grant is Dr. Marylyn Stephenson, who happens also to be a staunch member of the society that got the grant. Moreover, one of her bosses, Dr. Allan Forbes, is listed as a director of the society.

Spokesmen for both Food and Drug and Nutrition Today insist there is nothing improper about the relationship or the progress underthe grtant.

FUTURE KING?: Our associate Joe Spear reports from Riyadh that Saudi Arabia's 35-year-old Foreign Minister Saud, tall, handsome, articulate, educated at Princeton, "is being groomed for the throne."

Spear describes the young foreign minister as "impressive," with "an intimate grasp of the issues."

Why No Probe?

Confidential reports indicate $5 billion Welfare-Medicaid yearly ripoff

WASHINGTON— Just the other day, new Health, Education and Welfare Department studies confirmed reports in this column of vast welfare-medicaid ripoffs. The studies officially "disclosed" an annual loss, through waste, of some $1 billion.

The New York Times treated the item casually in a story buried deep in the paper. And that's deep. If the Pentagon had misspent or had permitted a billion dollars to be stolen in one year, the report would have been right' up front under an eight-column banner. There's an apparent reluctance to point fingers at welfare thievery, waste and sheer ineligibility.

Yet not until there whips up a national furor and fury over the awesome theft and special Senate select committee digs into the handling of over $25 billion in welfare and medical relief can the full story be told.

The billion-dollar theft and wastage of the people's money admitted by HEW officials is as low as an ant's door sill.

And while I'm not eligible for the coming International Mathematical Olympiad, I reckon that the ineligibility error and waste rate is some 20 per cent and that this brings the actual ripoff money to $5 billion a year.

Look at these statistics: the annual payment now for aid to families with dependent children runs over $10 billion. And that's a low projection. The yearly medicaid federal expenditure is over $14 billion. There are other forms of payments to welfare "clients."

Some of the ripoff rate, according to top HEW executives, runs to 65 per cent in smaller special relief groups. Some run 23 per cent in the big categories. But there's little doubt that the official publicly released "studies" with their single billion-dollar estimate of "waste" is far under the truth.

In this field I don't need Diogenes's lamp to find an honest -- and permit me the use of the word fearless -- investigator. I almost always turn to the one State Welfare Inspector General in this nation -- New York's Richard Horan -- who is eager for public confrontation with those who refute his charges.

He agrees that the billion-dollar annual loss estimate is low. He is working now on this state's own miserable record. And he estimates a $920 million waste and thievery loss this past year in New York City alone.

Since the federal government supplies some 55 per cent of the dependent children relief funds, this brings the ripoff in this city alone to almost half a billion dollars in federal money.

And there are other sources who prefer anonymity, but who state flatly there are "many" other industrial centes across the nation where the percentage of ineligibility and thievery is as high or higher than New York town. They, too, estimate the overall national welfare misspending at some $5 billion yearly.

One of these sources complains angrily that "we know this, we tell the federals and the state authorities but we can't get anything done because of the sensitivity in any area where investigators could be accused of harassing the poor."

Why can't we have the facts from the directors of the HEW Social and Rehabilitation Services? Who has monitored the growth of state and federal medicaid payments from $2.3 billion in fiscal 1967 to $12.1 billion in fiscal 1975? The figure is much higher today.

Who has kept under surveillance the spurt of similar federal and state funds in the basic welfare program, which is the aid to families with dependent children –a spurt from $1.7 billion in 1966 to an estimated $9.5 billion in the 1976 fiscal year?

And the other special supplementary income relief payments are so complex and difficult to trace accurately that no figure can be used with certainty except to say that it, too, is in the billions.

Apparently, until recently, virtually no one has ridden shotgun on the welfare monies as passionately as Congressmen have pursued the funds spent by the Pentagon, the FBI and the CIA. For example, a series of significant welfare reform amendments to the Social Security Act were passed in 1967 and 1972. Manyh of these have been ignored by HEW – though the Congress passed them to "control the costs of health (medicaid -- VR) programs."

Says the General Accounting Office, "The section by section analysis shows that HEW was slow in implementing many of the provisions, often taking one or more years after the effective date of the section to implement it by regultion."

And, "In fact, even though the 1972 amendments have been law for more than three years, several of its provisions have not yet been implemented." Why?

There's been no investigation. Why have the HEW officials been permitted to ignore Congress while hundreds of millions of dollars which could have been saved have been wasted and stolen?

Why no outcry?

MAGISTRATE COURT

CHARLESTON — Preliminary hearings for two persons charged with felonies were scheduled Thursday in Mississippi County Magistrate Court Judge W. Clifton Banta Sr.

June 10 was set as preliminary hearing date for Albert L. Mayville, who is charged with selling intoxicating liquor without a license and resisting arrest. Mayville is accused of selling an intoxicating drink to Vermont Johnson May 21 in Anniston and resisting arrest by Sheriff W.J. "Pedro" Simmons. He is free on $5,000 bond.

A preliminary hearing was set on June 18 for Richard Dale Oliphant of East Prairie on a charge of burglary and stealing filed in connection with a May 2 break-in at Hedge's Shell Service Station in East Prairie and the theft of tires, oil and tools with a total value of $400. He is free on $2,500 bond.

A felony charge of tampering with a motor vehicle—a tractor—against Donald Brown of East Prairie was amended to a misdemeanor of riding a stolen vehicle operated without the consent of the owner.

A one-year jail sentence was stayed and Brown was placed on one-year supervised probation on condition he pay $28 in court costs and obey the law.

Marvin Powell of Centerville, Miss., was sentenced to six months in the county jail on a charge of driving while intoxicated—second offense and 30 days on a charge of driving while operator's license is revoked.

Warrants issued

Michael Eugene McDowell, fishing without permit; Jessie Lee Green of Sikeston, speeding; and Aaron Jack Hinshaw of East Prairie, failure to register vehicle, arrest warrants issued for each for failure to appear in court.

Ann Landers

Girl repays rapist

Dear Ann Landers: I've read several letters about rape in your column, plus a lot of front-page articles. Maybe you'd be interested in something I ran across in a magazine I picked up on the bus.

It was under Neat Trick of the Month: A 15-year-old chick was raped by an 18-year-old dude. She played it cool, told him how much she dug it and gave him her phone number. She made a date with him for the next night and when they met at the appointed place, the cops grabbed him.

Excuse me if I'm wrong, but I have always been under the impression that it's impossible to rape a woman who is wiliing. -- Just Wondering In Cassville

Dear Cass: If you are suggesting it isn't rape unless a woman screams and fights back, you're mistaken. The chick realized she was trapped in a no-win situation and decided to outsmart the rapist, which is exactly what she did.

Five will get you ten if that case was tried in court, the son-of-a-gun got off on grounds she was a willing partner. Unless a woman has two black eyes, a busted jaw and six teeth missing, the court assumes she "dug it." The way rapists go free in our country is a national disgrace.

Dear Ann Landers: I need an answer to a problem that has been bothering me for a long time. It's an in-law. Not a father-in-law or a mother-in-law, but a little kid. He's our nephew -- belongs to my husband's sister.

We dread family get-togethers because of this child. He interrupts adult conversations, is mouthy, insolent and respects no one. He beats up on his cousins and some smaller kid always ends up in need of first aid.

His parents make no attempt whatever to discipline him. My husband says we should not interfere. I say if it's our house we have a right to insist on good behavior. May we have your opinion? -- Headache In Holyoke

Dear Head: When parents refuse to discipline a child and he misbehaves outside the home, the host or hostess has every right to take over and straighten the child out.

You'd be surprised how fast the youngster will shape up. Kids don't enjoy running wild. They want to be told exactly what the limits are. So hop to it.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious -- lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "They Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Mrs. Bond visits Sikeston

Missouri Delta Community Hospital Administrator Harold Jones and Carolyn Bond, wife of Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond, watch cardiac monitors in the intensive care unit of the hospital.

Carolyn Bond, wife of Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond, made an official visit to Sikeston Thursday on her husband's behalf.

Upon her arrival in Sikeston, Mrs. Bond was received at a private tea in the home of Mrs. Burt Rowe Jr. on North Ridge Road. Mrs. Bond discussed several of her husband's accomplishments during his four years as governor.

"Kit has worked hard to bring state government to the people," she said, citing her husband's support for the open meetings law and campaign reform measures.

She also told the group about the restoration of the Governor's Mansion in Jefferson City, which she believes can be a means of teaching Missouri's youth about the state's history.

"You can't live there long and not grow to love the building," she added.

Following the tea, Mrs. Bond made a tour of the emergency medical services at Missouri Delta Community Hospital. She took special interest in four ambulances which the hospital acquired as a result of community efforts and federal funds disbursed by the state, which her husband was instrumental in procuring.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — I live alone and found it difficult to open a three pound can of coffee until I came up with the idea of using an opener such as one which opens fruit juice cans. I put a good size hole on each side of the top. I can then pour out the needed amount of coffee and still have the plastic lid to cover the top. —RUBY.

DEAR POLLY — We do not smoke so no cigars were passed out when our children were born. I came up with the idea of using personalized pencils to announce the arrival of our second. We bought such pencils with half bearing the name we had chosen for a boy and half with our favored girl's name. As my husband's work mates discovered these pencils on their desks they got the message and had something useful besides. The kids are happy to receive the "inaccurate" pencils for their own use. —MRS.R.S.S.

DEAR POLLY — When saving a used razor blade put it in a plastic medicine bottle and it will be safe in the medicine cabinet. —HELEN.

Railroads help in securing industry

CHAFFEE—Karl K. Keffer Jr., a resource specialist for Frisco Railway Co., was guest speaker at the Chaffee Chamber of Commerce meeting Thursday night.

Keffer explained the role the railroad could play in helping the city secure industry.

By providing assistance for all the communities the railroad serves, he said a lot of competition is created for Chaffee.

One of the first requirements to secure industry is for a town to know itself, he said, and the best way to start is to have a negotiating team, comprised of the mayor or city manager, a Realtor, banker, attorney, city engineer, employment office manager, school superintendent andt the Chamber of Commerce manager, which can answer most questions that would be asked.

Frisco's role, Keffer said would be to advise, suggest and consult with the team and make preliminary site layouts on the drafting board and develop prospects through its departmental contacts, sales department, advertising in special industrial development books, direct mail programs and special studies.

Further, he said his department helps develop a profile of the community showing the location of industrial sites in relation to highways, railroads, airports and river traffic. He said present sites on the profile map show the old Frisco roundhouse area, which totals 45 acres just north of the city, and two sections on the south end totaling about nine acres.

When the railroad firm distributes these profiles to the industries, it usually includes several communities so the prospect can decide which community has the greatest interest in attracting new business.

Keffer said a profile of Chaffee, made by his department, will be submitted to the state Division of Commerce and Industrial Development June 1.

In further business, chamber president Bill Pfefferkorn distributed a new profile of the city developed by the state, showing the type of government, commercial services, industrial sites, utilities, labor market, health services, existing industry, recreation facilities, transportation, educatin and climate of the community.

Charles Vickery, chairman of the youth recreation work program, reported that a number of students are available for such jobs as baby sitting, lawn mowingand painting. For recreation, he said movies would be shown every other Friday evening at the football field again this summer, starting June 11.

Also, he said the Circle Park theater program will start June 27, and a fishing derby will be held June 13-27 for youths under the age of 18. Prizes will be awarded for the largest catfish and bluegill caught .

Morris Welsh, chairman of the July 4 activities reported on six projects to be sponsored jointly with the Chaffee Jaycees, in an effort to add adults to the youth activities.

Included are a tug-of-war, a huge cake cut into about 2000 pieces, a singing group to provide patriotic songs, a water fight possibly between several fire departments, a souvenir stand and a sky diver show between 1 p.m. and dark.

All were approved except the sky diver show, which was tabled until clearance of liability to the city and sponsoring groups is received.

Finally, it was reported that the city will be presented a Bicentennial flag by representatives of the State Bicentennial Committee at 10:30 a.m. June 12.

Student aid is ruled constitutional

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A state program which provides money for students attending both private and public colleges and universities amounts to a student assistance program and does not violate constitutional prohibitions against church-state relations, the Missouri Supreme Court was told today.

"We say these are awards to the students, for the students and not for the schools they attend," argued R.H. McRoberts, the St. Louis attorney representing the state Coordinating Board for Higher Education and Independent Colleges and Universities of Missouri.

Two other groups, Americans United and Missouri Friends of Public Schools, have contended the college grant program is unconstitutional since 17 of the private colleges in Missouri which take part in the program are strictly religious institutions.

St. Louis County Circuit Judge Robert G.J. Hoester agreed with the two groups in January when he held the program unconstiutitional and issued an injunction preventing the program's implementation.

But the injunction was later stayed until the state Supreme Court ruled on an appeal of Hoester's decision by the Coordinating Board and the private colleges.

McRoberts argued that the assistance checks are given to students on the basis of need and not to the colleges they attend. He admitted, however, that the grants benefit both private and public schools.

"It's not a grant by the state or the student to the university, but a payment for services rendered," McRoberts said.

But Frank Susman the lawyer representing those opposed to the program, said restrictive language should have been included in the law establishing the college assistance program when it was approved by the Missouri Legislature.

Railroads help in securing industry

CHAFFEE—Karl K. Keffer Jr., a resource specialist for Frisco Railway Co., was guest speaker at the Chaffee Chamber of Commerce meeting Thursday night.

Keffer explained the role the railroad could play in helping the city secure industry.

By providing assistance for all the communities the railroad serves, he said a lot of competition is created for Chaffee.

One of the first requirements to secure industry is for a town to know itself, he said, and the best way to start is to have a negotiating team, comprised of the mayor or city manager, a Realtor, banker, attorney, city engineer, employment office manager, school superintendent andt the Chamber of Commerce manager, which can answer most questions that would be asked.

Frisco's role, Keffer said would be to advise, suggest and consult with the team and make preliminary site layouts on the drafting board and develop prospects through its departmental contacts, sales department, advertising in special industrial development books, direct mail programs and special studies.

Further, he said his department helps develop a profile of the community showing the location of industrial sites in relation to highways, railroads, airports and river traffic. He said present sites on the profile map show the old Frisco roundhouse area, which totals 45 acres just north of the city, and two sections on the south end totaling about nine acres.

When the railroad firm distributes these profiles to the industries, it usually includes several communities so the prospect can decide which community has the greatest interest in attracting new business.

Keffer said a profile of Chaffee, made by his department, will be submitted to the state Division of Commerce and Industrial Development June 1.

In further business, chamber president Bill Pfefferkorn distributed a new profile of the city developed by the state, showing the type of government, commercial services, industrial sites, utilities, labor market, health services, existing industry, recreation facilities, transportation, educatin and climate of the community.

Charles Vickery, chairman of the youth recreation work program, reported that a number of students are available for such jobs as baby sitting, lawn mowingand painting. For recreation, he said movies would be shown every other Friday evening at the football field again this summer, starting June 11.

Also, he said the Circle Park theater program will start June 27, and a fishing derby will be held June 13-27 for youths under the age of 18. Prizes will be awarded for the largest catfish and bluegill caught .

Morris Welsh, chairman of the July 4 activities reported on six projects to be sponsored jointly with the Chaffee Jaycees, in an effort to add adults to the youth activities.

Included are a tug-of-war, a huge cake cut into about 2000 pieces, a singing group to provide patriotic songs, a water fight possibly between several fire departments, a souvenir stand and a sky diver show between 1 p.m. and dark.

All were approved except the sky diver show, which was tabled until clearance of liability to the city and sponsoring groups is received.

Finally, it was reported that the city will be presented a Bicentennial flag by representatives of the State Bicentennial Committee at 10:30 a.m. June 12.

Student aid is ruled constitutional

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A state program which provides money for students attending both private and public colleges and universities amounts to a student assistance program and does not violate constitutional prohibitions against church-state relations, the Missouri Supreme Court was told today.

"We say these are awards to the students, for the students and not for the schools they attend," argued R.H. McRoberts, the St. Louis attorney representing the state Coordinating Board for Higher Education and Independent Colleges and Universities of Missouri.

Two other groups, Americans United and Missouri Friends of Public Schools, have contended the college grant program is unconstitutional since 17 of the private colleges in Missouri which take part in the program are strictly religious instutitions.

St. Louis County Circuit Judge Robert G.J. Hoester agreed with the two groups in January when he held the program unconstiutitional and issued an injunction preventing the program's implementation.

But the injunction was later stayed until the state Supreme Court ruled on an appeal of Hoester's decision by the Coordinating Board and the private colleges.

McRoberts argued that the assistance checks are given to students on the basis of need and not to the colleges they attend. He admitted, however, that the grants benefit both private and public schools.

"It's not a grant by the state or the student to the university, but a payment for services rendered," McRoberts said.

But Frank Susman the lawyer representing those opposed to the program, said restrictive language should have been included in the law establishing the college assistance program when it was approved by the Missouri Legislature.

Clower, who hails from Yazoo City, Miss., was voted comic of the year by Billboard, Cash Box and Record World, and is the most sought after humorist in country music today. A former fertilizer salesman, he became nationally known for his famous Coon Hunt story. He has since been featured on the Dinah Shore show, Country Cross-Roads radio show, Hee Haw and many others.

Dr. Fish is a native of Star City, Ark., and presently serves as professor of evangelism at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Tex.

Clower and Dr. Fish will appear on the program with outstanding personalities in the music field.

The special Bicentennial Evangelism Rally is sponsored by the Missouri Baptist Convention and Southern Baptist Churches in Southeast Missouri. The Rev. G.D. Parrack of Cape Girardeau is coordinator for the event, and the Rev. Richard Adams of Portageville is publicity chairman.

Activities are planned throughout the day, including a guided tour to famous historical points of interest in the area. The tour will be conducted by bus from 10 a.m. until noon and will originate at First Baptist Church in Jackson.

Points on the tour will include a visit to the grave of Thomas Parrish Green, early Baptist leader in Southeast Missouri; the covered bridge and mill at the state park at Burfordville; Old McKendree Methodist Church and the site of Old Bethel Baptist Church. A free brochure will include other points of interest that may be visited during free time in the afternoon if desired.

Tables will be reserved in the Jackson City Park and in the dining room at First Baptist Church in Jackson for a family picnic lunch.

A pageant depicting early Baptist life in Southeast Missouri will be presented at 2 p.m. at First Baptist Church in Jackson, directed by Charles Blaylock, minister of youth at First Baptist Church in Cape Girardeau.

The evangelism rally program will begin at 7:15 p.m. with pre-service music. The music will be followed by the presentation of colors, pledge of allegiance and the Star Spangled Banner, sung by Elwood Doss, minister of music at First Baptist Church in Cape Girardeau.

The speakers will be Clower and Dr. Fish.

Christian Church assembly honors retiring president

JEFFERSON CITY — The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Lester B. Rickman were honored at an all assembly dinner and reception during the 137th regional assembly of the Christian Church in Missouri, held May 14-16 in the Ramada Inn. Dr. Rickman is retiring after 27 years as minister - president of the Christian Church in Missouri.

Over 725 members of Disciples of Christ churches met together for three days of deliberation and inspiration. The theme of the assembly was "Our Heritage and Destiny."

The Rev. Dr. Warren Fred Chrisman of Dallas, Tex., was installed as the new minister - president, succeeding Dr. Rickman. The address for the installation service was given by the Rev. Dr. Kenneth L. Teegarden of Indianapolis, general minister and president of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

Dr. Teegarden recounted the history of the Christian Church in Missouri dating back to 1816, with its first assembly in Howard County.

"The capacity of the church to meet the turbulent days ahead will depend in large measure upon its willingness to live out the meaning and implications of our century and a half of heritage," he stated.

The moderator for the assembly was the Rev. Dr. Sam S. Langley, minister of First Christian Church in Columbia. In Dr. Langley's address to the assembly, he stated, "What the individual is depends on how well he knows Him, if there has been an establishment of a personal and intimate relationship with Him."

The Rev. Dr. Perry E. Gresham, president emeritus of Bethany College at Bethany, W. Va., delivered an address to the assembly, titled "Our Historical and Theological Heritage", and also was the speaker at the service of retirement for Dr. Rickman, speaking on the topic, "God Bless Emeritus."

A four -part presentation, titled "Destiny of the Church", was presented.

Delegates to the assembly voted unanimously to approve the recommendation of the board designed to help members of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) recognize that their church should be the primary recipient of their charitable contributions and reminding members of the congregations that there are channels within the church through which individuals can give to worthy causes through the Church Finance Council.

Other action included passage of a resolution encouraging annual reviews of ministers' time schedules, priorities, plans and expectations, and continuing education for ministries; and a unanimous approval of a resolution encouraging delegates to sensitize their members to the whole world hunger crisis by cooperating in ecumenical events entitled World Hunger Education Action Together (WHEAT).

The assembly adjourned with a luncheon on Sunday honoring long-time servants of the church: Fidel and Helen Reyes, Alta Vista Christian Church in Kansas City; Dewey and Irene Sigler, First Chirstian Church in Dexter; C. C. and Phylis Damel, Second Christian Church, Jefferson City; Mrs. Edna Jackson, Hillcrest Christian Church, Belleville, Ill.; and Jack and Ivy Silvey, Lenoir Home, Columbia.

The 1977 assembly will be held April 29-30 and May 1 in Raytown.

Calvary Assembly to present film with Judgment theme

"The Judgment", a new full-color motion picture, will be shown at 7 o'clock tonight at Calvary Assembly, 127 W. Trotter St., according to the Rev. T.A. McDonough, pastor.

The soul-stirring 150-minute motion picture projects its viewers into the Judgment.

The film was born 18 years ago after the Lord had dealt with a pastor's heart in Beaumont, Tex., concerning this subject. The pastor had prepared a sermon on the Judgment, which was to be preached on Sunday morning, but before time to preach the message arrived, he awoke in the night and felt that God had told him not to preach the message as planned, but to wait until He showed him exactly what to do.

A few days later, while in prayer, the matter came to the pastor's mind again and he felt God instructing him to write the message in drama form and to enlist people of the church to act out the message. This was done, and in the very first presentation, over 100 people were converted to Christ. Needless to say, calls came from all over wanting to have the film presented in other churches. At that time, the group was unable to travel with the play because of many reasons. So the manuscript was put in the pastor's desk and lay there for 16 years, unused.

In November 1974, several young people's leaders heard of the play and wanted to read it. They were so impressed, they asked permission to get a cast and prepare to put it on for a Watch Night service. Permission was given and the play was presented before at least 1,000 people, and about 200 accepted Christ during the service. Two months later, it was presented in the City Auditorium with over 3,000 people present, and between 500 and 600 people professed conversion.

Now, "The Judgment" has become a full-color film and is being shown in churches and auditoriums across America.

Tonight's showing is free and open to the public. A nursery will be provided for small children.

For Parents 'n Teachers

This block of The Mini Page is especially designed for parents and teachers to use as a guide to this week's Mini Page.

Page 1: Discuss what an archaeologist does. Talk about any digs you might have seen. Discuss the definitions. Talk about the different jobs on a dig and have the child say which one he would pick and why.

Page 2: Dig your own Dinosaur: Talk about how fossils are formed. Some were formed when animals died and fell into water. Mud stuck around them. More mud and clay formed around them. The mud and clay turned to rock after years and years. The paleontologist has to chip the rock away.

Page 3: How do you know where to dig? Discuss the different places you can search for artifacts. Find out if there is a dig near you and visit it.

Page 4: What's the Problem? Ask the child to look at the picture and tell you what these children are doing wrong. This situation could apply to a vacant house as well.

Dig Your Own Dinosaur

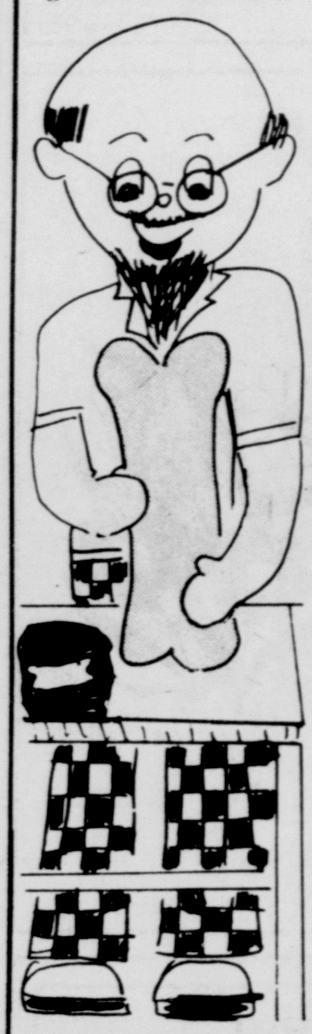
A sketch of what the dinosaur skeleton will look like when it is finally put on display at the North Carolina Museum of Natural History in Raleigh. A mortgage and loan company in North Carolina bought it as a gift to the state.



While archaeologists study about man and his past, the people that study animal fossils are called paleontologists (PA le on TOL a jists).

What! A Christmas gift of a safari to Utah to dig your own dinosaur!

That's what Neiman-Marcus, a well-known department store in Dallas, Texas, offered as an unusual gift in their 1975 catalog.

A bank in North Carolina bought the dinosaur dig. In the fall, someone from the bank will go with a research team from the University of Utah to look for the dinosaur fossils or bones which have turned to stone.

Once the bones have been unearthed, they will be carefully copied in a special material. The North Carolina museum will not get the real bones, but rather a skeleton based on what the research team finds.

Dinosaur bones are heavy. It would cost too much to make a display of the real skeleton.

The type of dinosaur skeleton the scientists are looking for is that of the Allosaurus (AL lo SAWR us), the giant meat eater of his day. This kind was 30 to 35 feet long, 15 feet tall and weighed 2 tons when it was living. It fed on small and medium-size reptiles and even attacked larger ones. It ran on hind legs. The front legs were very short and weak, but it had sharp claws that were probably used for grasping. These dinosaurs lived 130 to 180 million years ago.

Christian Church assembly honors retiring president

JEFFERSON CITY — The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Lester B. Rickman were honored at an all assembly dinner and reception during the 137th regional assembly of the Christian Church in Missouri, held May 14-16 in the Ramada Inn. Dr. Rickman is retiring after 27 years as minister - president of the Christian Church in Missouri.

Over 725 members of Disciples of Christ churches met together for three days of deliberation and inspiration. The theme of the assembly was "Our Heritage and Destiny."

The Rev. Dr. Warren Fred Chrisman of Dallas, Tex., was installed as the new minister - president, succeeding Dr. Rickman. The address for the installation service was given by the Rev. Dr. Kenneth L. Teegarden of Indianapolis, general minister and president of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

Dr. Teegarden recounted the history of the Christian Church in Missouri dating back to 1816, with its first assembly in Howard County.

"The capacity of the church to meet the turbulent days ahead will depend in large measure upon its willingness to live out the meaning and implications of our century and a half of heritage," he stated.

The moderator for the assembly was the Rev. Dr. Sam S. Langley, minister of First Christian Church in Columbia. In Dr. Langley's address to the assembly, he stated, "What the individual is depends on how well he knows Him, if there has been an establishment of a personal and intimate relationship with Him."

The Rev. Dr. Perry E. Gresham, president emeritus of Bethany College at Bethany, W. Va., delivered an address to the assembly, titled "Our Historical and Theological Heritage", and also was the speaker at the service of retirement for Dr. Rickman, speaking on the topic, "God Bless Emeritus."

A four -part presentation, titled "Destiny of the Church", was presented.

Delegates to the assembly voted unanimously to approve the recommendation of the board designed to help members of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) recognize that their church should be the primary recipient of their charitable contributions and reminding members of the congregations that there are channels within the church through which individuals can give to worthy causes through the Church Finance Council.

Other action included passage of a resolution encouraging annual reviews of ministers' time schedules, priorities, plans and expectations, and continuing education for ministries; and a unanimous approval of a resolution encouraging delegates to sensitize their members to the whole world hunger crisis by cooperating in ecumenical events entitled World Hunger Education Action Together (WHEAT).

The assembly adjourned with a luncheon on Sunday honoring long-time servants of the church: Fidel and Helen Reyes, Alta Vista Christian Church in Kansas City; Dewey and Irene Sigler, First Chirstian Church in Dexter; C. C. and Phylis Damel, Second Christian Church, Jefferson City; Mrs. Edna Jackson, Hillcrest Christian Church, Belleville, Ill.; and Jack and Ivy Silvey, Lenoir Home, Columbia.

The 1977 assembly will be held April 29-30 and May 1 in Raytown.

Calvary Assembly to present film with Judgment theme

"The Judgment", a new full-color motion picture, will be shown at 7 o'clock tonight at Calvary Assembly, 127 W. Trotter St., according to the Rev. T.A. McDonough, pastor.

The soul-stirring 150-minute motion picture projects its viewers into the Judgment.

The film was born 18 years ago after the Lord had dealt with a pastor's heart in Beaumont, Tex., concerning this subject. The pastor had prepared a sermon on the Judgment, which was to be preached on Sunday morning, but before time to preach the message arrived, he awoke in the night and felt that God had told him not to preach the message as planned, but to wait until He showed him exactly what to do.

A few days later, while in prayer, the matter came to the pastor's mind again and he felt God instructing him to write the message in drama form and to enlist people of the church to act out the message. This was done, and in the very first presentation, over 100 people were converted to Christ. Needless to say, calls came from all over wanting to have the film presented in other churches. At that time, the group was unable to travel with the play because of many reasons. So the manuscript was put in the pastor's desk and lay there for 16 years, unused.

In November 1974, several young people's leaders heard of the play and wanted to read it. They were so impressed, they asked permission to get a cast and prepare to put it on for a Watch Night service. Permission was given and the play was presented before at least 1,000 people, and about 200 accepted Christ during the service. Two months later, it was presented in the City Auditorium with over 3,000 people present, and between 500 and 600 people professed conversion.

Now, "The Judgment" has become a full-color film and is being shown in churches and auditoriums across America.

Tonight's showing is free and open to the public. A nursery will be provided for small children.

Many Kids Dig Archaeology

Being an archaeologist is backbreaking work. See the strings laid out to form a grid. This grid will serve as a map so the junior archaeologists can record where they found an artifact. The level of soil it was found in is also important.

Maybe you are an archaeologist (AR kee OL e gist).

Have you ever found an arrowhead or piece of pottery when you were out digging or just walking and looking down? Did you wonder about the people who first used these things?

Archaeology is the study of the remains of people who lived before us and the things they used. In a way, archaeologists are detectives who dig into the earth. From the evidence they discover, they try to solve the mystery of how people lived many, many years ago.

To find out about archaeologists at work, the Mini Page went on a "dig" with some ninth grade students in Virginia. They were digging up an old garbage dump. They were amateurs learning something about how a professional archaeologist might do things.

Archaeological words to know:

Site — where they dig.

Dig — They often say they are going on a "dig." This means that they are going to dig up or excavate a special spot of land. They also call their site a dig.

Artifact—something made by man, not something in nature (pots, pans, beads, baskets).

Find — any artifact that they discover.

Datum point — a spot near the site that is used as a guide or point to help the archaeologists make a map of exactly where they are digging.

Strata — the levels of soil in which artifacts are discovered. The strata are important in that they establish the point in time in which the finds were used.

Potsherds — pieces of broken pottery

Who's who in an archaeological crew?

The crew chief studies a map of the area and supervises things. He or she keeps a record of the dig.

Measurers make measurements of exactly where artifacts are found.

Diggers use shovels, trowels or ice picks to dig up artifacts.

Recorders write down where the artifact is found and sketch it.

Washer-baggers wash the artifacts, if possible, then put them in labeled bags.

Screeners shovel the dirt through a screen to catch the smaller items.

Photographers take pictures of the artifacts for the records.

For Parents 'n Teachers

This block of The Mini Page is especially designed for parents and teachers to use as a guide to this week's Mini Page.

Page 1: Discuss what an archaeologist does. Talk about any digs you might have seen. Discuss the definitions. Talk about the different jobs on a dig and have the child say which one he would pick and why.

Page 2: Dig your own Dinosaur: Talk about how fossils are formed. Some were formed when animals died and fell into water. Mud stuck around them. More mud and clay formed around them. The mud and clay turned to rock after years and years. The paleontologist has to chip the rock away.

Page 3: How do you know where to dig? Discuss the different places you can search for artifacts. Find out if there is a dig near you and visit it.

Page 4: What's the Problem? Ask the child to look at the picture and tell you what these children are doing wrong. This situation could apply to a vacant house as well.

The Super Bird of the Past

Sixty million years ago, thousands of reptile birds flew in the air. They were called pterosauria (TER o SOR ee ah). They were not like today's birds. They had smooth skins and no feathers.

Last year, a college student named Douglas Lawson discovered the fossil remains of the biggest pterosaur ever found. The bird is called the "Texas Pterosaur"—since that is the state where it was found. The bird has a wing span of 51 feet.

A professional archaeologist at work. Many states are becoming conservation minded. They hire archaeologists to visit sites before buildings or river dams can be built. There might be valuable artifacts below the surface.

Archaeologists who are looking for artifacts read about the area to find out all they can. Then they might search for the following clues:

Arrowheads and spear points—If you pick up a lot of these, the chances are there could be interesting things underneath.

A cave with a mound in front—The people who lived here might have thrown garbage out the entrance.

A hill with a flat top—This might have been the site of a city. Look for water nearby.

Different colored grass—Some archaeologists fly above the site and look for different colors in the grass or shrubs. The lighter grass might indicate walls underneath.

A square shaped mound—This could have been a fort.

Mounds in pattern—These might have been houses.

A professional archaeologist at work. Many states are becoming conservation minded. They hire archaeologists to visit sites before buildings or river dams can be built. There might be valuable artifacts below the surface.

Archaeologists who are looking for artifacts read about the area to find out all they can. Then they might search for the following clues:

Arrowheads and spear points—If you pick up a lot of these, the chances are there could be interesting things underneath.

A cave with a mound in front—The people who lived here might have thrown garbage out the entrance.

A hill with a flat top—This might have been the site of a city. Look for water nearby.

Different colored grass—Some archaeologists fly above the site and look for different colors in the grass or shrubs. The lighter grass might indicate walls underneath.

A square shaped mound—This could have been a fort.

Mounds in pattern—These might have been houses.

Magic Tricks

Say: "I can break my nose."

Hold your hands over your face. Look straight at your audience.

Trick: Put your thumbnail behind your front teeth and make a snapping noise. After you have "broken your nose," you can say you will snap it back into place.

I can take off my thumb!

Hold your hands like this. Let your index finger cover the break between the two hands. Pull your hands away from each other. It looks as if your thumb is coming off.

"It's a matter of letting something else go," Mayor Glen Ayers added.

Hall pointed out after the meeting that if the land is worth a few thousand dollars per acre when bought by a developer and they can get the city to put in lights, water and other city services they can turn right around and sell it at a much higher price, making a profit at city expense.

The mayor, who did not have a say in the final decision, recommended that the developers put in the water lines at their own expense and include it in the cost of the houses, which are sold later.

"We're talking about two blocks, seven hundred and some odd dollars," Ayers said, asking how many blocks there will eventually be in the subdivision. "We're obligating ourselves to a lot of money. We'll be starting out in the hole. It'll take two years to get the money back before they pay any taxes."

Hall also expressed the fear that if they start paying for work done in subdivisions the city could wind up paying for the whole development one block at a time.

When asked after the meeting if this wasn't a dangerous precedent, Cowgur commented that it wasn't the first time the city had done this and Lancaster said "you have to remember, this is Bloomfield."

"You start out in a hole and you can't get the money to do it," Ayers warned. "If the situation continues in this vein, the city will eventually either raise the water rates or ask for a bond issue.

As if to prove the point, McRoy brought up another project he felt should be worked on: A culvert near Lick-Creek Estates which preliminary estimates placed at a cost of about $1,000.

"Give me the answer to one question before you start," Ayers said. "Where are we going to find the money? Don't you think we need to know?"

He continued, "There's no personalities on my part, but when you're building as many houses as they are down there there are some things you have to pay for yourselves."

The council decided to look into the cost of installing a culvert at the location.

The mayor and city clerk told the council that the city has little money to work with, but McRoy seemed doubtful. It was decided to have an audit report explained by the city's accountant in a special meeting at a date not yet set.

In other business, Hall told the council that Dr. Leonard Palmer of Dexter will be at the city fire station from 3 to 5 p.m. June 16 to administer vaccinations to cats and dogs at a cost of $3 each.

"It's a matter of letting something else go," Mayor Glen Ayers added.

Golf addicts don't find the game 'stupid'

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

There are those in the world who say that golf is a stupid game. For a good portion of my life, I was in agreement with them.

One of America's great comedians, Bill Cosby, has gotten many laughs at the expense of the game of golf and its participants. "He has the ball there right beside him," says Cosby about the average duffer, "and then he takes a stick and hits it away! Then he goes and walks after it, and when he finds it, he hits it again!"

While Mr. Cosby may have a point about the seemingly senseless game many call "cow pasture pool", any golfer will tell you it is not senseless at all.

This writer was fourteen-years-old before he ever so much as picked up a golf club. Having not had the good fortune to be born into the country club set, my only previous experience with golf had been via the television and at the local miniature golf course.

But one day I was talked into playing a round with a friend. We both used the same bag of clubs, since I owned none. I also had no golf shoes, and had to play the round in a pair of tennis shoes.

But despite the strange clubs and the lack of good footing, and despite the fact that I had never been on a golf course before in my life, I enjoyed myself. Before the two-hours that it took to play the nine-hole course at the Sikeston Country Club were over, I knew that I was hooked.

I was convinced that, given a sufficient amount of practice and a little bit of coaching, I could become a decent golfer. I was wrong.

For five years, playing whenever possible in the summer, I struggled to achieve mediocrity on the links. There were days when I became so frustrated with my play that I vowed to myself that I would never play again. That usually lasted about a week. Maybe it was the desire to prove to myself that I could do better that drew me back to the course.

But I never did excel at golf. After a half a decade of slicing tee shots, hitting fat iron shots and pushing two-foot putts, I finally convinced myself that I would never get any better.

Now my interest in the game of golf is limited to a spectator's role. But having once been a participant in the sport, I can appreciate the finer points of what has become one of America's great participant sports.

There are not many thrills in sports greater than that of feeling the perfect impact of driver against golf ball, watching the ball explode off the tee, taking a graceful arc, descending to earth and then rolling to a stop 250 yards down the fairway. Or watching your nine-iron shot, with just the right amount of backspin, bite the green and hold, just three feet from the cup.

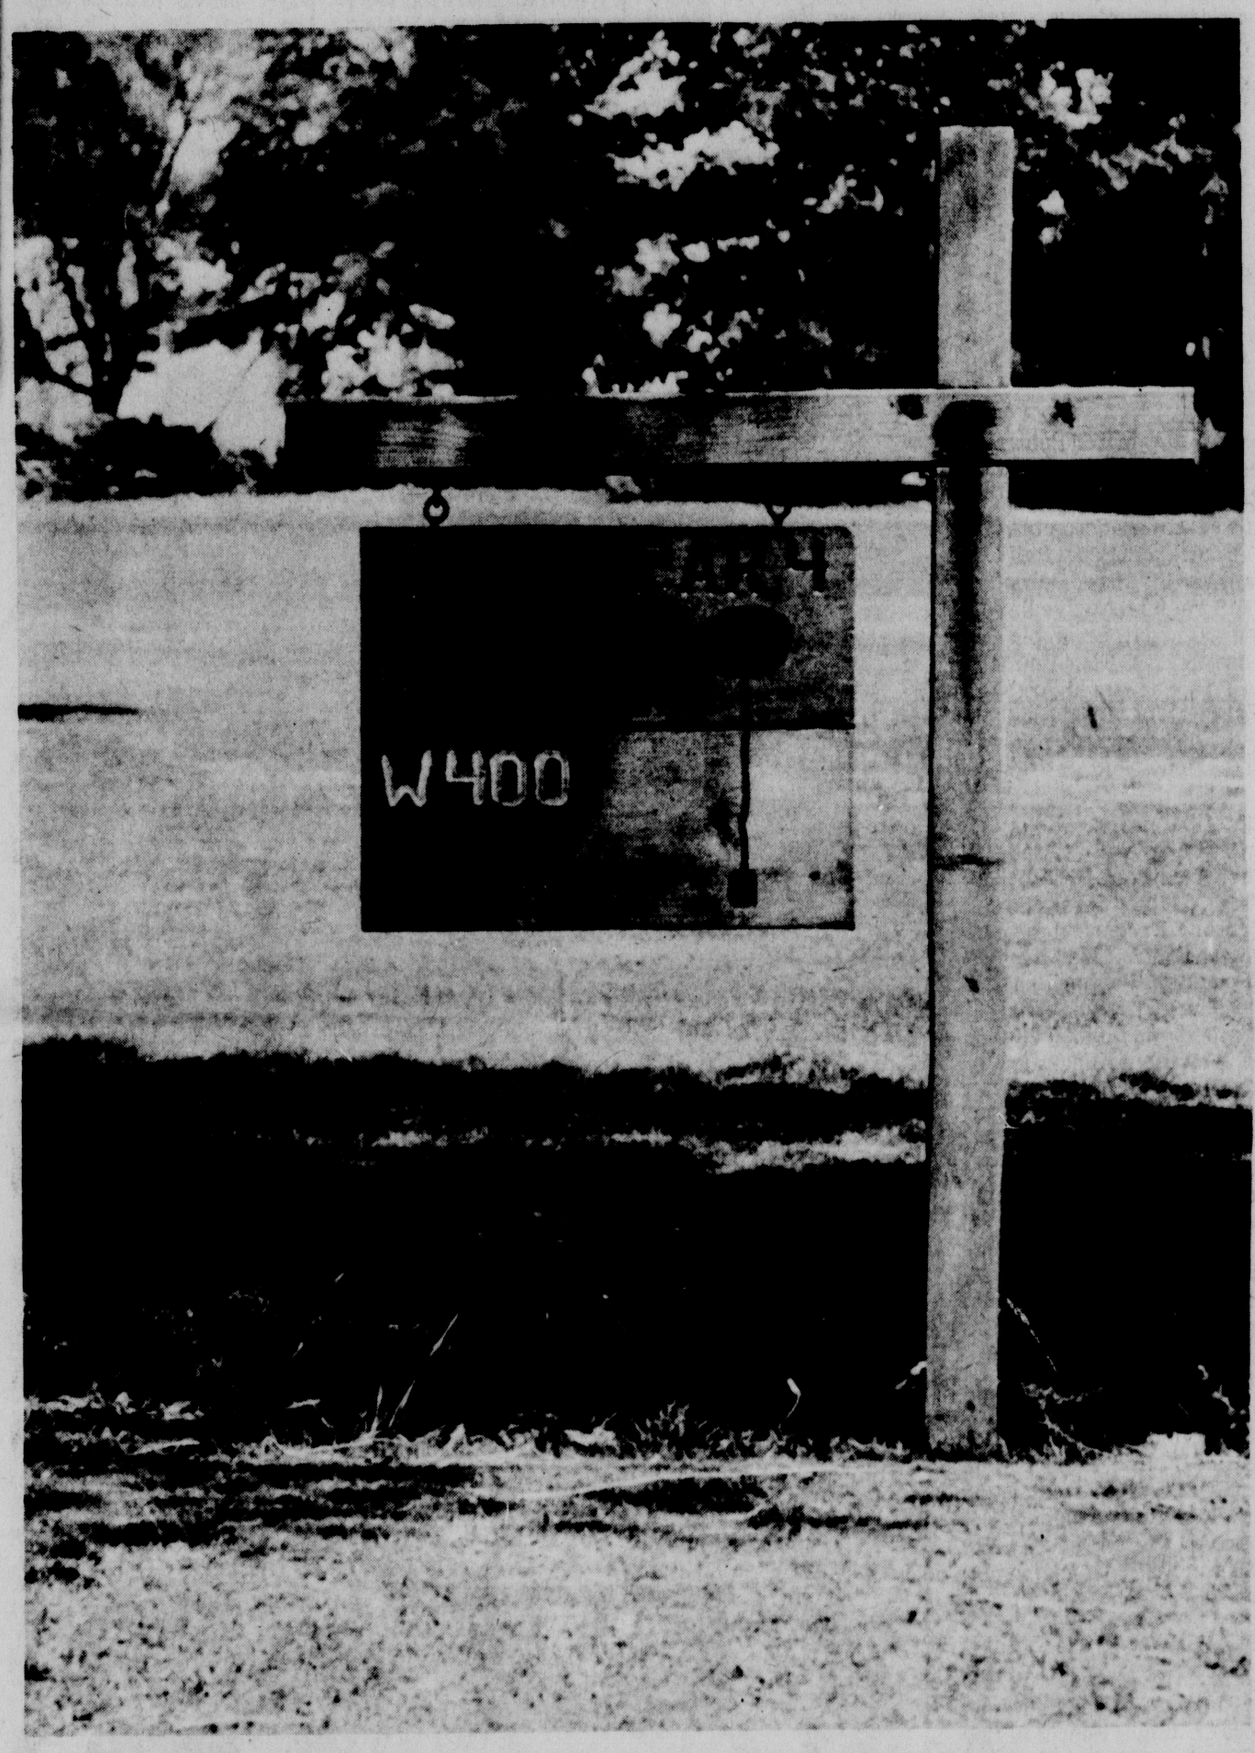
I can understand why the Sikeston Mens Golf Association has well over a hundred paid members, over 80 of whom turned out in the rain May 13 to play in the season-opening scramble tournament. And almost all the association's members participated in the handicapper tournament held the next week.

I can understand why golf equipment sales are up all over the country. And I can see why the demand for public golf courses is increasing. Golf is no longer just a rich man's sport.

So it is with all duffers in mind, whether they be wealthy or humble, man or woman, one-handicappers or 21-handicappers, age nine or ninety, that we present to you the 1976 Daily Standard Golf Section. I'd like to thank staff members Bill Harrison and Dale Forbis for their efforts in producing the section. We also owe thanks to the merchants whose advertising made the special edition possible, and to the various golf pros in the area who provided us with information on their course.

This is my first venture of this sort, and I must admit that it will not be among the great golf sections in journalism history. But, in all its mediocrity, it is hoped that the 1976 Daily Standard golf section will somehow add to the enjoyment of the game for our readers who play it.

After all, isn't pleasure and enjoyment what golf is all about?



Although the local links are over 35 years old, there are still chances being made each year at the Sikeston Country Club golf course. New tee markers, like the one above, have been installed at each hole, telling the golfer the distance, and the par of each hole. The nine holes added to the course in 1971 are also continuing to improve. The photo at the right shows how the once-bumpy fairways are looking better each year.

Pro golf's No. 1 question

What's wrong with Arnie?

By BILL HARRISON

The greatest mystery in the golf world today is what has happened to Arnold Palmer? His name was a household word in golf circles through the 1960's and the most feared name for the golfers on the professional tour. His name is still used a lot now but in a very different way. Now instead of talking about him being the favorite of the next tournament people are asking if he will ever win another. Palmer's problem hasn't been so much winning a tournament but simply qualifying for one. Palmer doesn't even know what the trouble is himself. What is so mystifying about it is that he seemed to lose his touch overnight. It wasn't a matter of age as usually happens to most professional sportsmen but just being unable to hit the ball where he wants to. He had to lay off for a while at first because of a physical problem with his back but that was supposed to have been corrected.

No one has to feel sorry for old Arnie though because he was the first player to earn a million dollars on the professional tour. But with the first place prizes giving away now he certainly won't be the last. In fact there have been several who have won a million since. Lee Trevino did it in only six years on the tour.

Now Trevino is having trouble winning the big ones. Mostly the problem with the "Super Mex" is his carefree attitude. Who has to bare down after they're already a millionaire?

There was time when there were three players that would habitually finish 1-2-3 in just about every tournament. When the World Series of Golf was inaugurated the same three could be counted on to compete for the championship, Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player. The years have taken their toll though and now Arnold Palmer and Gary Player are names of the past. "The Golden Bear" Jack Nicklaus is still around and probably the favorite of every tournament he enters. Arnie's Army can't be found anymore except for the few tournaments that Palmer qualifies for these days.

It's a sad thing to see for golfing fans across the country because if there was anyone in golf who could make a fan out of someone who couldn't find the sport exciting to watch Arnold Palmer surely could with his style. There weren't many who ever watched him play that didn't get excited when he would make his charge on the last round to overhaul the leader. Palmer would let it all out on his drives so he could get to the green to putt for the birdies.

Palmer played so poorly a few weeks ago that he failed to qualify for a major tournament and as a result is considering retiring from the tour. It is a sad thing to happen for the Palmer fans and golf fans in general because we can still remember the Palmer charges. The leaders on the fairway ahead could hear the roar of the crowd behind knowing that the noise signaled that Palmer was sinking his putts to close the gap or take over the lead. Those days seem to be gone for ever now that the cardigan sweater salesman has finally gone as far as he can. Palmer can only sit and watch the younger players with the exception of Nicklaus, receive the ovations.

Outside of Jack Nicklaus there may never be another player to electrify the fans the way he only could.

Jack Nicklaus started to take over the top spot from Palmer before Arnie completely collapsed and is still the top player to beat. There may never be as great a player as Nicklaus on the scene but Jack doesn't have the charisma that Palmer had.

No other player has been as much of a crowd pleaser as Palmer. Nicklaus is very popular today but the fans don't gasp for breath when he sinks a winning putt in the exact same way that they did for Palmer.

Fans can remember the intensity of a Palmer drive off the tee after sinking a birdie putt to cut the opponents lead. Palmer could feel victory and would come to the next tee and rip into the ball with all his strength to get it as close to the green as possible to cut his strokes. How many fans can forget the little hitch Palmer had at his waistline before getting ready to whack the ball.

There have been a lot of great golfers and there certainly will be a lot of great ones come along through the years but there will probably never be another player who will thrill the fans like Arnold Palmer. He has made his million dollars playing golf and certainly has received all the occulades and will certainly go down in the Golf Hall of Fame with all the rest of the greats.

Pro golf's No. 1 question

What's wrong with Arnie?

By BILL HARRISON

The greatest mystery in the golf world today is what has happened to Arnold Palmer? His name was a household word in golf circles through the 1960's and the most feared name for the golfers on the professional tour. His name is still used a lot now but in a very different way. Now instead of talking about him being the favorite of the next tournament people are asking if he will ever win another. Palmer's problem hasn't been so much winning a tournament but simply qualifying for one. Palmer doesn't even know what the trouble is himself. What is so mystifying about it is that he seemed to lose his touch overnight. It wasn't a matter of age as usually happens to most professional sportsmen but just being unable to hit the ball where he wants to. He had to lay off for a while at first because of a physical problem with his back but that was supposed to have been corrected.

No one has to feel sorry for old Arnie though because he was the first player to earn a million dollars on the professional tour. But with the first place prizes giving away now he certainly won't be the last. In fact there have been several who have won a million since. Lee Trevino did it in only six years on the tour.

Now Trevino is having trouble winning the big ones. Mostly the problem with the "Super Mex" is his carefree attitude. Who has to bare down after they're already a millionaire?

There was time when there were three players that would habitually finish 1-2-3 in just about every tournament. When the World Series of Golf was inaugurated the same three could be counted on to compete for the championship, Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player. The years have taken their toll though and now Arnold Palmer and Gary Player are names of the past. "The Golden Bear" Jack Nicklaus is still around and probably the favorite of every tournament he enters. Arnie's Army can't be found anymore except for the few tournaments that Palmer qualifies for these days.

It's a sad thing to see for golfing fans across the country because if there was anyone in golf who could make a fan out of someone who couldn't find the sport exciting to watch Arnold Palmer surely could with his style. There weren't many who ever watched him play that didn't get excited when he would make his charge on the last round to overhaul the leader. Palmer would let it all out on his drives so he could get to the green to putt for the birdies.

Palmer played so poorly a few weeks ago that he failed to qualify for a major tournament and as a result is considering retiring from the tour. It is a sad thing to happen for the Palmer fans and golf fans in general because we can still remember the Palmer charges. The leaders on the fairway ahead could hear the roar of the crowd behind knowing that the noise signaled that Palmer was sinking his putts to close the gap or take over the lead. Those days seem to be gone for ever now that the cardigan sweater salesman has finally gone as far as he can. Palmer can only sit and watch the younger players with the exception of Nicklaus, receive the ovations.

Outside of Jack Nicklaus there may never be another player to electrify the fans the way he only could.

Jack Nicklaus started to take over the top spot from Palmer before Arnie completely collapsed and is still the top player to beat. There may never be as great a player as Nicklaus on the scene but Jack doesn't have the charisma that Palmer had.

No other player has been as much of a crowd pleaser as Palmer. Nicklaus is very popular today but the fans don't gasp for breath when he sinks a winning putt in the exact same way that they did for Palmer.

Fans can remember the intensity of a Palmer drive off the tee after sinking a birdie putt to cut the opponents lead. Palmer could feel victory and would come to the next tee and rip into the ball with all his strength to get it as close to the green as possible to cut his strokes. How many fans can forget the little hitch Palmer had at his waistline before getting ready to whack the ball.

There have been a lot of great golfers and there certainly will be a lot of great ones come along through the years but there will probably never be another player who will thrill the fans like Arnold Palmer. He has made his million dollars playing golf and certainly has received all the occulades and will certainly go down in the Golf Hall of Fame with all the rest of the greats.

Mr. Scott was a very active member of the Association and was a winner in the first tournament played back in 1963.

This year's tournament will be held at the Cape Girardeau County Club on Cape Rock Drive.

Holes-in-one are habit for Jarrell

Holes-in-one are getting to be a habit for Sikeston High School golfer Greg Jarrell.

While the dream of most duffers is to card an ace, Jarrell, at the ripe old age of 18, has two to his credit already. Jarrell put a six-iron shot in the hole on the third green at the Sikeston Country Club course back in April, with Bulldog teammates Christ Alberts and Ron Priday looking on. Jarrell had a hole-in one on the same course two years ago.

Equipment sales show golf gaining popularity

By BILL HARRISON

Golfing has become a big sport over the past 10-15 years and seems to be getting bigger all the time. Professional tournaments begin as early as January in the United States in California and move eastward toward the east coast as the weather begins to warm up.

There is more and more money in the pots from year to year and more and more tournaments to enter. If a man doesn't desire to enter the big tournaments with such names as Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskoff, Lee Trevino etc. then he can still make a good living playing the no-names.

As the years go by there are more young golfers entering the game who have been attracted by the huge money prizes being offered. As the young players come on the scene the competition has also increased. There was a time not too many years ago when four or five above par would win the really big tournaments but now no one can hardly expect to take the first place money unless they are at least 9-10 under par. Gibby Gilbert just won the Memphis Open Tournament with a 15-under par.

Colleges and universities are giving out more scholarships in golf the last few years. The trend is producing more good young players and causing a bigger interest in golf in high schools. Ther are several high schools in the Sikeston area that have put golf into its sports program and as a result its popularity is definitely on the increase.

There are approximately 50-60 tournaments scheduled in the southeast Missouri area that can be attended by any golfing enthusiast in Sikeston.

With the increase in popularity of the sport comes the increase in equipment sales. J. C. Penney Company in the Kingsway Plaza Mall reports that their equipment sales has increased over 100 percent over last year so far and the season hasn't reached its peak yet. Sikest Sporting Goods store reports that so far in 1976 their sales are about the same as last year.

Club Pro Gene Dawson of the Sikeston Country Club says that there is definitely an increase in golfers over the past few years and as a result the sales of equipment has naturally increased along with it.

Area golfers compete as collegians

By DALE FORBIS

It seems that every year a dozen new faces spring from the college ranks and join the professional tour. Youthful talent like Ben Crenshaw, Johnny Miller and others of the same mold breathe a spring-like breath of fresh air into the PGA every year, adding excitement to the competition and keeping progessional golf alive.

Well there are no "Ben Crenshaw"- types from Southeast Missouri in the pros at the present times, but who's to know what the future holds. Anyone who observes the action on area links is aware of the abundance of golfing talent in the locality, and, every so often, a youngster pushes his way among his elders into a high ranking. Almost all of Southeast Missouri's collegiate golfers accomplished just that during their formative years. In at least four cases, these young men have stuck with their sport and achieved success on the college level.

Dexter's Bob Jibben, New Madrid's Fred Copeland, and Sikeson's Dennis Meyer and Tom Dawson are the only area youngsters competing on the college level, as far as we know. No other university or like institution has informed us to the contrary.

Dawson grew up in a golfing environment and, predictably, his game prospered because of it. The Tennessee Tech golfer's father, Gene Dawson, is the pro at the Sikeston Country Club. Using his access to the greens to improve his game, the 6-foot-4 athlete was on the Sikeston High School golf team all three years in high school, making two trips to state.

Dawson also played basketball at Sikeston, proving his versatility, and has been captain of the Tennessee Tech golf team during the past season. This has been the 22-year old's last year competing at Tech and his coach has remarked on several occasions that Dawson is as good, if not better, than anyone he has ever coached.

Future plans are not known at this time for the senior, but you can bet that golfing will have some place in his future.

Starting this past Tuesday and continuing throughout this week, Northeast Missouri State-Kirksville's golf team has been in Youngstown, Ohio, competing in the 1976 NCAA Divison II Championships. Senior Bo Jibben of Dexter is a member of that squad, coached by Ben Pitney.

This is the first time a NEMo team has been involved in national competition since 1964 and the Dexter native is a big reason for them being there. Jibben is averaging 79 strokes for every 18 holes, the second-best mark on the team.

With Jibben's leadership of teammates Mike Minear, Greg Church, Mark Rimer and Dean Summa, Northeast won its first MIAA Conference crown in 16 years.

Since he was a freshman, New Madrid's Fred Copeland has been a big man on the University of Missouri-Columbia's golf outfit.

The senior at Mizzou averaged in the low-70s during the past season, his last on the Columbia campus. The son of Rep. Gene Copeland of New Madrid, Fred was captain of the Tiger team.

The past season was the first one for sophomore Dennis Meyer at Southeast Missouri State-Cape Girardeau. Meyer is the first Sikeston golfer competing for Cape since David Newberry graduated two years ago.

We are not aware of any others from the immediate area who have achieved success in collegiate competition, but many sports information directors don't recognize gold as a major sport and make little attempts to inform a player's hometown press. With the escalating winners' shares, golf on a professional level is very much a major sport and you can bet that these four, as well as many other youngsters, are aware of golf's increasing impact on the American sporting public.

Golf is growing in Southeast Missouri and the youth are a big part of the growth. Don't be surprised to turn on your TV set some time in the near future and see one of "Southeast Missouri's own" teeing it up with Jack Nicklaus.

FISK IS FEATURED

NEW YORK (AP) — Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox is featured on the 1976 American League Red Book cover. The catcher is shown hitting his 12th inning home run which won the sixth game of the 1976 World Series over Cincinnati. However, the Reds won the series by taking the seventh game.

The cover has four color photos of Fisk. They show him swinging at the ball, rooting for the drive to stay fair, jumping in the air when he's certain it's a home run and then being mobbed by his Bosox teammates at home plate.

Masters Facts

TEARJERKERS

In 1957 Byron Nelson put his tee shot into the drink at the par-three 16th. His second attempt, a superb 7-iron shot, struck the flagpole squarely about a foot above the cup and bounced back into the water. Nelson said this was the only such accident of his career. Toney Penna was less fortunate. He recalls the same thing happening to him, on No. 12, twice, once in the 1938 tournament and again in 1939.

IN A RUT

Billy Joe Patton birdied the par-4 ninth hole on all four days in the 1954 tournament. In a friendly round the next Monday he birdied Number Nine again. The following year, in the first round—you guessed it!

ARITHMETIC AWARD

Roberto de Vicenzo signed an incorrect scorecard after tying Bob Goalby for the 72-hole lead in 1968 and eliminated himself from a playoff. De Vicenzo's playing partner, Tommy Aaron, had put down a par 4 for the 17th hole—a hole on which a national television audience had watched him score a birdie 3. The four left de Vicenzo one shot behind Goalby, who was declared the winner. "I am a stupid," commented Roberto, tears in his eyes. "At my age, I may never have this chance again."

Sixty-six by Ben Hogan in the third round of the 1967 Masters. He was 54 years old.

HIGH HOLES

Frank Walsh used up 12 shots on Number Eight in 1935. Herman Barron took 11 on the par-three 16th hole in 1950 and Dow Finsterwald took 11 at the par-three 12th hole in 1951.

Nicklaus says Bobby Jones was responsible for amateur rules in professional golf

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tournament golf is a profesional sport still played by amateur rules, Jack Niclaus says, and the man responsible for it was the late Bob Jones.

"If it hadn't been for Jones, his ethics and lofty standards, there is no telling which way the game might have gone when it got so big after the war," added the world's topranking player.

"Jones had tremendous influence. When so many people began playing and so much money was involved, the game could easily have gone the other direction.

"But it didn't. It is the only sport where the players rule on themselves. No other sport has been freer from cheating and scandal."

Nicklaus changed hats today, launching over a course of his own design a tournament which he hopes to pattern after the famous Masters in Augusta, Ga., which came out of Bobby's head.

It is the Memorial Tournament, being played this weekend over the Muirfield Village Golf Club on the outskirts of Columbus, where Jack was born and reared.

Fittingly, the inaugural event was dedicated to the amateur immortal from Atlanta, who crammed 13 British and U.S. open and amateur championships into the space of eight years and retired from competition at the age of 28 after completing the Grand Slam in 1930.

"No man except my father has had a greater impact on my golf career," Jack recalled.

Jones, plagued during his later years by a crippling illness that confined him to a wheelchair, died Dec. 18, 1971.

"When I was a kid of 11 or 12 years old playing around the Scioto Club, all I ever heard were old-timers talking about how Jones played this hole and that hole when he won the Open there in 1926.

"It made a big impression. I felt like Jones was the man next door whom I had never met."

Introduction came in 1955. Jack was 15, playing in his first U.S. Amateur Championship at the James River course in Richmond, Va., when he was summoned by a stranger in a cart who had just seen the youngster reach the long 18th hole with two mighty woods.

"Young man," Jones said, "I have been watching players come to this hole most of the day. You're the first I have seen reach it in two."

In 1961, shortly before turning pro, Jack received a moving letter from Jones, suggesting that it would be a great thing for golf if he remained an amateur.

"I considered it," Jack said. "But finally, I decided that if golf was to be my main interest, I must devote myself to it completely. The only way I could do it was as a pro.

"Now I wouldn't trade what has happened to me for anything in the world."

But the ghost of Jones still drives him on.

"He set a tremendous goal," Jack conceded. "Remember, he only played in an average of four tournaments a year. And he won almost all of them. He quit at an age most golfers are just beginning.

"But what I regard even higher was Jones' dignity and principles. They are reflected in all of golf today."

Jackson golfers are very active

Two of Southeast Missouri's most active golf organizations--the Mens and Ladies Golf Associations of Jackson--find the Kimbeland Country Club of Jackson to be a testing but enjoyable course.

The Kimbeland course, opened for play in 1963, features six lakes and three doglegs on the eighteen-hole course. The layout is 6,350 yards long.

Head professional John Alexander, a Class A PGA pro, supervises the upkeep of the 72-hole course, along with assistant pro Chick Beljick. One of the most desirable features of the course is the bent grass greens, which are in perfect condition.

A total of 425 golfers are members of the two Jackson organizations.

The first big event of the season was a Mens Four-Ball Tournament held May 15-16. The Kimbeland Invitational Tournament is set for June 19-20, and the Kimbeland Mixed Pairs Tournament is scheduled for August 21-22

Groundskeeper John McCulley is busy getting the ninth green in shape for the coming summer at the Crowley Ridge Golf Course. McCulley has just used a machine that punches holes in the green so that the grass can get air and is now chopping up the small pieces of dirt that was corkscrewed out of the ground.

Mixed -doubles golf hits pro tour in December

The newest thing in professional golf is going to be a $200,000 mixed- doubles championship to be played at the Doral Country Club in Miami December 17-19.

The top players on both the ladies and men's tour are expected to compete for the top prize money.

The adies will be after the big names in men's golf such as Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskoff, Johnny Miller and Tom Watson.

It will be a 54- hole tournament with scoring details yet to be worked out. It probably will be a Scotch foursome formula, each mixed team using one ball and hitting alternate shots.

The Hotel and Restaurant Employes Union will be the sponsor.

Ray Volpe, the new commissioner of the Ladies Professional Golf Association announced the schedule event to the LPGA.

"This is leap year and good timing for the event", said Volpe.

Volpe, a former National Hockey League executive, feels that women's golf has suffered because of the isolation.

"For some reason, we have let ourselves be victimized by the 'golf widow' syndrome -- The men have priority on the golf course with Tuesday set aside for Ladies Day", he said. "The reason tennis has succeeded is that the industry has recognized it as a family sport --husbands playing with wives, fathers with daughters and so forth. Golf must do the same."

The women's golf tour is getting bigger and bigger and the purses are becoming larger and larger.

The total prize money thisyear will be around $3 million. The richest tournament in the history of the LPGA will be held Sept. 23-26, the $205,000 Carlton Grand Prix in Los Angeles. At least three women will go over the $100,000 mark in winning.

The commissioner is trying to remove the long-dress image th-at women's golf has taken on through the years.

There are 145 women on the tour and most of them are young and attractive along with being very good golfers. Fifty per cent of the women have been on the tour less than three years.

The ladies on the tour no longer stay inside their motel rooms in seclusion but lead active social lives.

The LPGA has such young ladies as Amy Alcott, 20; Laura Baugh, 21; Bonnie Lauer, 24; Australia's Jan Stephenson, 25 and Little Ai-You Tu of Taiwan, 21.

There are also players from Japan, Canada, Germany, New Zealand, England and south Africa.

There are many women on the tour that can hit the ball as far as some of the men on the professional tour.

Many of the top women golfers on the Ladies' PGA tour, such as South Africa's Sally Little, will get a chance to compete along with men this December 17-19 in a $200,000 mixed-doubles championship tournament at the Doral Country Club in Miami.

Mixed -doubles golf hits pro tour in December

The newest thing in professional golf is going to be a $200,000 mixed- doubles championship to be played at the Doral Country Club in Miami December 17-19.

The top players on both the ladies and men's tour are expected to compete for the top prize money.

The adies will be after the big names in men's golf such as Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskoff, Johnny Miller and Tom Watson.

It will be a 54- hole tournament with scoring details yet to be worked out. It probably will be a Scotch foursome formula, each mixed team using one ball and hitting alternate shots.

The Hotel and Restaurant Employes Union will be the sponsor.

Ray Volpe, the new commissioner of the Ladies Professional Golf Association announced the schedule event to the LPGA.

"This is leap year and good timing for the event", said Volpe.

Volpe, a former National Hockey League executive, feels that women's golf has suffered because of the isolation.

"For some reason, we have let ourselves be victimized by the 'golf widow' syndrome -- The menhave priority on the golf course with Tuesday set aside for Ladies Day", he said. "The reason tennis has succeeded is that the industry has recognized it as a family sport --husbands playing with wives, fathers with daughters and so forth. Golf must do the same."

The women's golf tour is getting bigger and bigger and the purses are becoming larger and larger.

The total prize money thisyear will be around $3 million. The richest tournament in the history of the LPGA will be held Sept. 23-26, the $205,000 Carlton Grand Prix in Los Angeles. At least three women will go over the $100,000 mark in winning.

The commissioner is trying to remove the long-dress image th-at women's golf has taken on through the years.

There are 145 women on the tour and most of them are young and attractive along with being very good golfers. Fifty per cent of the women have been on the tour less than three years.

The ladies on the tour no longer stay inside their motel rooms in seclusion but lead active social lives.

The LPGA has such young ladies as Amy Alcott, 20; Laura Baugh, 21; Bonnie Lauer, 24; Australia's Jan Stephenson, 25 and Little Ai-You Tu of Taiwan, 21.

There are also players from Japan, Canada, Germany, New Zealand, England and south Africa.

There are many women on the tour that can hit the ball as far as some of the men on the professional tour.

Many of the top women golfers on the Ladies' PGA tour, such as South Africa's Sally Little, will get a chance to compete along with men this December 17-19 in a $200,000 mixed-doubles championship tournament at the Doral Country Club in Miami.

Try these 'games golfers play'

The game of golf can wear two faces. The one we normally see is that of straight head-to-head competition (match play, i.e., one player against one player, two against two, etc.) or every player against the field (stroke play, i.e., lowest number of strokes for given number of holes). The other face, though, is what we are concerned with here, that is, the infinite variety of competitions. Have you ever heard of Remorseful Golf? Tin Whistle Tournament? Bingle-Bangle-Bungle? Grenies? Probably not, but these and many other novel events can spice up the weekend schedule at your club. Try suggesting some of the following events to your chairman or committee; you and all your golfing friends will be glad you did.

Alibi Event

Contestant may replay the same number of shots as allowed by his handicap, but not more than one on any single hole and with the exception of putts.

Average Score

Stroke play. Partners average their gross scores for each of the 18 holes and deduct half their combined handicap from their 18-hole total. Half strokes count as whole strokes after totaling.

Best-Ball Twosome

Two players play as a team, taking handicaps as they fall on card. Lowest score on a hole with handicap counts toward team's best-ball score on a hole is counted. Team having the lowest best-ball score wins.

Bingle-Bangle-Bungle

Three points on each hole. One point to player whose ball first comes to rest on the surface of the green. Second point to player whose ball is nearest the cub after all players are on the green. Third point to player whose ball is nearest the cup after all players are on the green. Third point to player who first sinks his putt. On short holes, no point for first on green, but this point goesto player whose ball is second nearest the pin. In settling up, each player wins the difference between his total points and the total points of each player with fewer points.

Bline Holes Tournament

Winning score is based on only nine holes, selected individually from among the 18 to be played. Holes are selected after all players have teed off so that they have no knowledge of holes that will count. Half handicap is usually used to compile net totals.

Bobs and Birds

Bobs are points gathered for landing closest to pin on par-3 holes; birds are points tallied for birdies on any hole.

Choice Score

The best score of partners on each hole is chosen to arrive at an 18-hole total. Full or ¾ handicaps are permitted and contestants enter their net scores to compute the round.

Blind Partners

An 18-hole stroke-play round with 100 per cent handicap. Players may play with anyone of their choice but partners are drawn after everyone has teed off so that players don't know their partners until they finish. Team with lowest best-ball score wins.

Cross-Country Tournament

Start about a mile from the course and play across country finishing on one of the greens near the clubhouse. The ball must be played as it lies.

Drop-Out Tournament

Each player uses his full handicap and plays against par. Players remain in the contest only until they lose a hole to par. Player who goes the farthest wins.

Flag Tournament

Each player is given a small flag with his name attached. Using his full handicap, he plays until he has used the number of strokes equalling par plus his handicap. He plants the flag after using his quota of strokes, playing an extra hole or two if necessary. The winner is the player who plants his flag farthest around the course.

Get-Acquainted Tourney

Play is 18-hole medal with full handicaps. Each competitor must play with a partner with whom he has not previously been paired.

Greenies

Point given for stopping closest to cup on tee shot on par-3 hole.

High and Low Ball

In partner play, with two points involved on each hole, one is awarded for the best ball and the second for the best of the two poorest balls.

Kicker's Tournament

(also called Blind Bogey) The committee draws a number and announces that it was, for example, between 60 and 70. Players select their handicaps without knowing the exact number drawn. The player whose net score equals, or is closest to, the number drawn is the winner.

Kickers' Replay

Each competitor is permitted to replay any two shots of a round. He must continue with the replayed ball once it is elected.

Long-and-Short Tournament

Some players have good short games and poorer long games and vice versa. This event combines the abilities of these two types of golfers. One player does the driving and long work, his partner does the approaching and putting. Players choose their own partners.

Low Net Foursome

In a field of contestants, the total score of one foursome of players, less handicaps, determines the winner.

Million-Dollar Tournament

Players purchase $10,000 of scrip money at first tee but must pay the other members of their foursome for the following: ..$100 for hitting into the rough; $200 for hitting into wrong fairway or hitting tree and bouncing into right fairway; $300 for missing ball entirely; $300 for swearing; $100 for stopping to look for a tee; $300 for loss of ball, to be paid each member who helps look for it with a two-minute time limit; $300 from each member of the foursome to the player whose ball is first on the green, first down. Player with most scrip money at end o 18 holes is the winner. Scrip can be good for merchandise at pro shop.

Mixed Foursomes

Partners consist of man and woman, with man driving from odd-numbered tees and woman from even-numbered (or the other way round). Partners play every other shot from tee to green, allowing half of combined handicaps.

Monkey Foursome

Each member of the foursome carries a single club, those selected generally being a wood, 2-iron, 5-iron and putter. Each member plays the single ball in rotation from wherever it lies with his chosen club. Thus a player may be forced to drive with a putter, putt with a 5-iron, etc.

Nassau Tournament

Sometimes known as Best Nines play, this type of competiton finds prizes given for the best outgoing nine, the best incoming, and for best 18 holes. A player's full handicap applies to 18-hole scores, and half handicap for each of the nine-hole scores.

No-Alibi Tournament

Instead of deducting his handicap at the end of the round, each player is allowed to replay during the round the number of shots equalling three-quarters of his handicap. A replayed stroke must be used even if it is worse than the original stroke.

Odd-and-Even Tourney

Played in foursomes with two players to a ream, one plays all even holes and the other all odd. Using one-half the combined handicaps, low net is winner.

One-Ball Play

Two players, as partners, take alternate shots at same ball from tee to green and also drive alternately from successive tees.

Point Event

Contestants receive three points for each birdie scored, two for each par and one point for each hole requiring one stroke more than par. Played at full handicap, the winner is golfer with the greatest number of points.

Putting Tournament

The player making the fewest putts over 18 holes of play is the winner.

Remorseful Golf

Each player has the privilege of making his opponent re-play any four shots during the round. These may be shots which he considers lucky or feels cannot be duplicated.

Round-Robin

Using four-ball play, partners are changed every six holes, so that each player engages in three six-hole matches with each of the others in the foursome as a partner.

Scotch Foursome

Two players to a side. On each hole, there is a point for low ball and a point for low aggregate score of a side. Holes may be halved by all players making the same score, or by one side winning low ball and losing the aggregate. The event is sometimes played with low ball worth two points and aggregate one.

Scorefest

May include two teams of any size. The losing side is that which scores the least number of points on the following scale: Net scores under 70 (75 points); from 70-74 (40); from 75-79 (25); 80-84 (15); 85-89 (10); 90-100 (5), and net scores over 100 (2 points.)

Selected Score

Each competitor plays 36 holes. He selects his best score on each hole from the two cards and applies his handicap. The golfer with the lowest net score for his 18 holes is the winner.

Specks

Player or team accumulates "specks" for the following on each hole: longest tee shot in fairway, first on the green, closest on approach to pin, a one-putt green and lowest total for the hole. Individual or side with most specks at end of 18 holes wins.

Scratch and Scramble

Four - ball stroke play. On each hole, partners' scores are added and divided by two to obtain the team's score. Play is more interesting if high- and low- handicappers are paired.

Shotgun Tournament

At least one team is stationed at tee of each hole and all are started with blast of shotgun.

Splash Tournament

Players must contribute one new ball for every one they hit into a water hazard during round. A player not turning in his card is fined three balls just on suspicion. The three lowest net scores divvy up the balls on a 60-30-10 split.

String Tournament

Each player is given a piece of string in lieu of a handicap. The s string is measured to allow one foot for each handicap stroke. The player or side is allowed to advance the ball by hand to a more favorable spot, measuring the distance with the string and cutting off the length used. When the string is used up the player is on his own. The string may be used to advance the ball into the cup while putting, or to move away from an obstruction, etc.

Target Contest

With the cup as bull's-eye, mark four circles with largest about 35 feet in diameter, the next 25 feet, the third 15 feet, and the last 5 feet. Then set three tees at distances of 100, 75 and 50 yards from the hole. The contestants, using a club of their choice, play one shot from each of the tees. Score results as follows: Hole-in-one (25 points); ball in 5 - foot circle (5 points); in 15-foot circle (3); in 25-foot-circle (2), and in 35-foot circle (1 point).

Throw-Out Tourney

Played at full handicap under medal play, each player may throw out his three worst holes of round of 18, thereby making only 15 effective in determining the net final score.

Tin Whistle

On match-play basis, one point is scored for each hole made in one over par; three points for par on five points for a birdie. Player with greatest number of points wins. Played on handicap basis with strokes taken at the hole specified. A par, minus handicap stroke, counts as a birdie.

Record field expected for ladies tourney at Murray

MURRAY, Ky. — A record field of more than 125 ladies from the four-state area around West Kentucky is expected to participate in the 9th annual George Hart Invitational Tournament Wednesday, June 2, at the Murray-Calloway Country Club.

Invitations have been sent to lady golfers at 35 clubs in the area, and the growing number of entries is expected to surpass last year's field of 123 players in the one-day, 18-hole, medal play event.

Mrs. Venela Sexton and Mrs. Elizabeth Slusmeyer are co-chairmen of this year's tournament, assisted by the ladies comprising the women's golf committee at the club.

The $10 entry fee covers the entire day's activities, including lunch, a style show and other special activities in addition to the 18 holes of competitive golf.

The top winners in each of five flights will receive prizes valued at several hundreds of dollars. Players will be pre-flighted by handicaps and the tournament will be shotgun started, beginning at 9 a.m.

Entries and handicaps should be sent to Mrs. Slusmeyer (Apt. I-4, Murray Manor, Murray, Ky. 42071) not later than May 27, immediately after which pairings will be made and tee-off times sent to the clubs of the ladies from whom entries have been received.

The winner of the championship flight also will receive the coveted traveling trophy presented by Mrs. Lochie Hart of Murray in memory of her husband, the late Goerge Hart. A prominent civic leader, Mr. Hart was mayor of Murray, president of the Bank of Murray and an active member of the club.

Another special trophy to be awarded will be the Dorothy Holland Team Trophy, an award donated by Al Lindsey, Murray Jeweler, in memory of his aunt, an active member of the club until her death in 1970.

The trophy will be presented to the four players from any one club whose aggregate score is the lowest of any similar group participating. Last year, the team trophy was won by the Paxton Park team from Paducah for the second consecutive year--Dutch Bryant, Wanda Mullinax, Bea Tapp and Mary Jane Alford.

The defending champion, Dr. Lea Larson, women's golf coach at Austin Peay State University, Clarksville, Tenn., will not play this year because of other commitments. She also won the tournament in 1974, and last year shot an even par 75 (ladies' par) to repeat.

Previous winners of the championship flight have been: Mrs. Jane Ann Nall, Mayfield (1968); Mrs. Mary Anderson, Metropolis, Ill., (1969) Mrs. Alford in 1970 and 1972; Mrs. Betty Vowell, Fulton, (1971) and Mrs. Harriett Jaeger, Jackson, Mo., (1973).

Entries and handicaps should be sent to Mrs. Slusmeyer (Apt. I-4, Murray Manor, Murray, Ky. 42071) not later than May 27, immediately after which pairings will be made and tee-off times sent to the clubs of the ladies from whom entries have been received.

The winner of the championship flight also will receive the coveted traveling trophy presented by Mrs. Lochie Hart of Murray in memory of her husband, the late Goerge Hart. A prominent civic leader, Mr. Hart was mayor of Murray, president of the Bank of Murray and an active member of the club.

Another special trophy to be awarded will be the Dorothy Holland Team Trophy, an award donated by Al Lindsey, Murray Jeweler, in memory of his aunt, an active member of the club until her death in 1970.

The trophy will be presented to the four players from any one club whose aggregate score is the lowest of any similar group participating. Last year, the team trophy was won by the Paxton Park team from Paducah for the second consecutive year--Dutch Bryant, Wanda Mullinax, Bea Tapp and Mary Jane Alford.

The defending champion, Dr. Lea Larson, women's golf coach at Austin Peay State University, Clarksville, Tenn., will not play this year because of other commitments. She also won the tournament in 1974, and last year shot an even par 75 (ladies' par) to repeat.

Previous winners of the championship flight have been: Mrs. Jane Ann Nall, Mayfield (1968); Mrs. Mary Anderson, Metropolis, Ill., (1969) Mrs. Alford in 1970 and 1972; Mrs. Betty Vowell, Fulton, (1971) and Mrs. Harriett Jaeger, Jackson, Mo., (1973).

Rain postpones semifinals of state tourney

The apprehension of the state baseball tournament has been building up all week for the youthful Sikeston Bulldogs, but the local team will have to wait another eighteen hours before the magic moment when they take the field against Ste. Genevieve.

A steady rain overnight has forced the cancellation of today's semifinal game against Springfield Glendale. Ste. Genevieve school officials said this morning that the game will be played Saturday morning at 10:00 a.m., with the other semifinal game between Jennings and Kennedy immediately following. Then, the two winners will square off at 8:00 Saturday evening for all the marbles.

If the sun came out for about three hours, we probably could still play today," said a Ste. Genevieve school administrator about the decision to cancel the game. "But the St. Louis weather bureau says it (the rain) is supposed to stop tonight and be clear tomorrow."

"There ain't no tomorrow," would be a fitting cliche to describe the situation involving state tournaments, but Bulldog coach N.P. McDaniel wouldn't have it any other way.

"I love the competition," smiles the coach when asked about nervousness or any other disorders that go with this tension-packed time of the year.

Two wins in one day mean glory and the first state championship of any type in Sikeston's history. A loss in either game and the youthful Bulldog squad will have to make the long trip home from Ste. Genevieve, struggling through their disappointment to remember that they have nothing to be sorry for after such a successful year.

Sikeston opposes Springfield Glendale in a 10:00 a.m. game tomorrow morning in the semi-final round. Glendale is a strong, 19-3 team that won't beat itself and has some of the deepest and best pitching in the state. Sikeston will see either a curve-balling righthander that is 6-0 or a hard-throwing lefty who is 7-0. The Glendale team, reportedly not a strong hitting team, made just one error last weekend while routing Carthage 10-0 and Oak Park 5-0.

Sikeston beat Lebanon 13-2 and Eureka 5-4 to earn the trip. Lebanon got a 1-0, forfeit victory over Glendale during the past week accounting for one of the Springfield high school's defeats. Earlier, Glendale edged Lebanon 4-3.

Sikeston's lineup will look like this:

| | |
|---|---|
| 1ST Dale Deal, SS | .370 JR |
| 2ND Jeff Limbaugh, 3B | .354 JR |
| 3RD Larry Jackson, 1B | .300 JR |
| 4TH David Shell, C | .425 JR |
| 5TH Ricky Taylor, P | .333 SR |
| 6TH Bill Hampton, LF | .272 SR |
| 7TH Wayne Barnett, DH | .271 JR |
| 8TH Gary Silverthorn, 2B | .200 SO |
| 9TH Garry Griffin, CF | .273 JR |
| Kenny Standridge, RF | .333 JR |

If Sikeston wins Saturday morning they will face the Jennings-Kennedy winner Saturday night at 8:00. Both (knock on wood) game summaries will be featured in Sunday's Standard.

Home crowd helps Celts embarrass Phoenix Suns

BOSTON (AP) — Boston's pro basketball fans are used to watching the Celtics destroy opposing teams with one explosive period. But rarely have they witnessed anything like what they saw in the second game of the 1976 National Basketball Association championship series.

With a capacity crowd of 15,320 screaming loudly Thursday night, the Celtics combined near-perfect offense and defense for the first five minutes of the third period, outscoring the jittery Phoenix Suns 20-2. After that, the Celtics had to put down only one belated Phoenix rally before registering a 105-90 victory and assuming a 2-0 lead in the nationally televised best-of-seven series.

"The crowd really got psyched," Phoenix' rookie center Alvan Adams said afterwards.

What really set the crowd afire was a deliberate foul called against former Celtics' backcourt man Paul Westphal with Boston leading 51-41 early in the third quarter.

Westphal was called for the rare infraction when he grabbed Boston's Jo Jo White from behind as the Celtics' guard headed for what appeared to be an easy layup after he had stolen the ball from his ex-teammate.

"When they saw their beloved Paul (until then still a favorite of the Boston fans even one year after his trade to Phoenix) do something they didn't like ... it got the crowd rockin', it got the Celtics rockin', too," said Adams.

Phoenix Coach John MacLeod protested the call against Westphal and was tagged with a technical foul.

White, although infuriated, sank all three free throw attempts and the Celtics were winging.

White's steal had been preceded by a theft and an easy layup by Charlie Scott, and those two plays unglued the young, inexperienced Suns, who have not beaten the Celtics in 12 games on Boston's home court in five years.

After White's three foul shots, Scott and John Havlicek hit long jump shots, giving the Celtics 12 consecutive points in the first three minutes of the period and a 58-41 lead. Adams broke the string with a tipin, but Boston came right back with eight points in a row and it was 66-43.

Later in the period, the lead had ballooned to 80-52. The Suns, after shooting a poor 33 per cent from the floor through the first three periods, finally found the range in the fourth quarter, but it was too late.

Mickey Lolich actually was bunted out of his first National League game. Now a Met, Lolich mishandled two Montreal Expos bunts in the second inning and it led to his early departure.

Foyt is slight favorite for Indy 500 race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt, the seemingly ageless speedster who has been looking for nearly a decade for a record fourth victory hhere, gets the nod as a slight favorite over a quartet of other former winners for victory in Sunday's 60th annual Indianapolis 500.

The fifth annual Associated Press poll of drivers, mechanics, officials and newsmen rated Foyt a 4-1 favorite, with 5-1 odds on pole position starter Johnny Rutherford, Gordon Johncock, Al Unser and Mario Andretti.

Defending champion Bobby Unser, with a new team this year, was listed at no better than 11-1.

The 42-year-old Foyt, who has had more than his share of troubles this month, reportedly has solved the problems that resulted in his qualifying a relatively poor fifth in the 33-car lineup.

If there is a dark horse in the field, it figures to be veteran Roger McCluskey, the 1973 national champion, who has been here 15 times now, led the race twice but never come away better than third.

McCluskey is driving a new machine designed by the fellow who laid out the specifications for Dan Gurney's fabulously successful Eagle a few years ago, and this new machine appears to be the best of the lot. McCluskey is starting in the fifth row, but his qualifying speed is sixth fastest over-all.

Here's the line on the other drivers queueing behind Foyt:

At 5-1: Rutherford, a proven driver, proven car, proven team — what more could you ask? Johncock should have no shortage of horsepower with the new George Bignotti engine. Watch out for Al Unser if his Cosworth-powered machine is running at the finish. Andretti, he won't be 19th vey long.

At 6-1: Wally Dallenbach, the hard luck loser of last year should be as tough as ever with a little better fortune. McCluskey, if you're a betting person, watch this one — this very well could be his year.

At 7-1: Tom Sneva, only a relative lack of experience keeps him from being rated better this year.

At 8-1: Lloyd Ruby, after what he and his team did in just three days to get him in the show, you have to give him a good shot at it.

At 9-1: Pancho Carter, still a little inexperienced like Sneva, but driving a car that is a proven winner. Bill Vukovich, the driver is very capable if the car can finish. Mike Mosley, the perennial dark horse, with an even more intense desire to win this year.

Wasson has big night as Eagles rip Bank 20-4

First baseman Ed Wasson of the Eagles blasted a homer and double to drive in five runs Thursday night as his team rolled to a 20-4 romp over the Bank of Sikeston in Junior Babe Ruth League action at the complex. The evening's other scheduled game between Home Materials and Davis and Bird was rained out.

After a walk and a single in the top of the first, Wasson tagged loser Scotty McDowell for the league's first round-tripper of the year, a three-run shot. Gary Lasters, whose four-RBI performance in a losing effort was overshadowed by Wasson's big night, drove in the first of his four runs with a two-run double in the bottom of the inning to make it 3-2.

Eagle pitcher Chris Launius held the Bank in check over the next three innings, but his teammates ripped the ball for seven runs in the second and more in the third while piling up a big 17-2 lead. The Eagles led 20-2 after a three-run fifth, but Lasters ripped another two-run double in the bottom of the inning to drive home another pair and make the final count 20-4.

The JEagles used eight hits and fifteen walks to rack up their twenty runs.

Renko & Knowles team to beat Cardinals 2-1

CHICAGO (AP) — Pitchers Steve Renko and Darold Knowles have something in common. They know what it is. So do managers Jim Marshall of the Chicago Cubs and Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The thing the two pitchers share is effectiveness against the Cardinals and the two put their talents to work Thursday to serve the Cubs a 2-1 triumph against the Cardinals.

Renko, whom the Cubs acquired from Montreal less than two weeks ago, gained his first victory of the season but needed seventh inning help from Knowles.

The last time Renko won a major league game was last September 18 with a 5-0, five-hitter against the Cardinals for Montreal.

"There's no special reason but I seem to pitch well against the Cardinals," said the 31-year-old righthander.

"I had good control. I threw the ball where I wanted and that's a big factor.

"I'm happy to be with the Cubs," said Renko. "I'm glad to be away from Montreal. The climate there isn't the best in the world and I didn't like the tax situation (where Americans have to pay taxes to both Canada and the United States)."

Knowles, picking up his second save in two days against the Cardinals, had one victory and five saves against them last year.

"The big secret to beating the Cardinals is getting Ted Simmons and Reggie Smith out," said Knowles. "I've had good luck against those two."

Already this year Knowles has had one victory and three saves against the Cardinals.

"I know it, I know it," said Schoendienst. "Knowles can't get anybody else out but he's tough on us. I feel sorry for Pete Falcone. He's pitched great for us but we just can't get him any runs.

"Actually, the Cubs shouldn't have had a run today. They get a hit off the glove and score in the first inning and we mess up a double play and they score the winning run in the fourth. It's brutal."

Falcone, suffering his fourth loss against two victories, gave up a leadoff single to Rick Monday and one out later, Bill Madlock singled off the heel of Falcone's glove. Jerry Morales then walked and Monday scored on a sacrifice fly by George Mitterwald.

The Cubs scored the winning run in the fourth. Morales doubled and oneout later Manny Trillo beat out a bunt single, sending Morales to third. Steve Swisher then hit what would have been an inning-ending double play to shortstop Don Kessinger but Mike Tyson dropped the throwat second with Morales scoring the winning run.

The Cardinals scored their only run in the second on a walk to Willie Crawford and singles by Hector Cruz and Tyson. Falcone then sacrificed and Lou Brock was given an intentional walk before Don Kessinger fouled out to end the inning.

Renko retired 14 men in a row before Cruz and pinch batter Ron Fairly singled in the seventh with one out. Knowles then took over.

Janet lands spot in World 600

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — "I think she realizes now that I'm not bulling her," engine-builder Ralph Moody said Thursday after Janet Guthrie became the first woman to qualify for a major stock car race.

Miss Guthrie, foiled in her recent attempts to make the Indianapolis 500 field, averaged 152.797 miles an hour in the former Chevrolet of A.J. Foyt to land the 27th starting position for Sunday's 17th annual World 600 at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

"She has proven she can drive a Grand National car and that will help her confidence," said Moody, who built Miss Guthrie's engine. He was half of the former Holman-Moody team whose cars dominated the sport for so many years. "She will get faster and be able to tell us more about the car's handling as she gets experience."

Miss Guthrie, a 38-year-old physicist from New York City, helped bump the likes of veterans Buck Baker, Bobby Isaac and David Sisco from the field. Her two-lap qualifying sprint around the 1.5-mile super speedway was the 12th quickest of the day as 15 drivers made the 40-car field and 18 others were left to vie for 10 spots Friday.

"Don't ask me about that woman driver," quipped Baker, who at age 57 is attempting to make a comeback. "She has already made a fool out of me with my prediction (of 145 m.p.h.). She's in the field and I'm not. I'm ready to believe anything. Even that she can win the race."

Tigers meet Texas A & M

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — Fast-starting Texas A&M and fast-finishing Missouri open the Midwest Regional NCAA baseball playoffs here today.

The second first round game of the day will feature the hard-hitting University of Arizona Wildcats, lead by the top hitter in the playoffs, going against the light hitting Pan American Broncs, whose pitching got them into the NCAA playoffs for the seventh straight year.

The Texas A&M Aggies opened the season with a school record 16-game winning streak and slowed somewhat before finishing the season at 34-8, good enough for second place behind the University of Texas in the Southwest Conference.

The University of Missouri Tigers, on the other hand, finished the season at 45-20 and wound up with two upset victories over the University of Oklahoma, forcing the Sooners to lose the Big Eight baseball title for the first time in five years.

The Arizona Wildcats wound up their regular season play at 44-16 and finished second behind top-ranked Arizona State in the Western AthleticConference.

Pan American, the only independent in the Midwest Regional, finished the season at 53-17 despite having a low team batting average of .280, the lowest batting average among the four playoff teams.

Wasson has big night as Eagles rip Bank 20-4

First baseman Ed Wasson of the Eagles blasted a homer and double to drive in five runs Thursday night as his team rolled to a 20-4 romp over the Bank of Sikeston in Junior Babe Ruth League action at the complex. The evening's other scheduled game between Home Materials and Davis and Bird was rained out.

After a walk and a single in the top of the first, Wasson tagged loser Scotty McDowell for the league's first round-tripper of the year, a three-run shot. Gary Lasters, whose four-RBI performance in a losing effort was overshadowed by Wasson's big night, drove in the first of his four runs with a two-run double in the bottom of the inning to make it 3-2.

Eagle pitcher Chris Launius held the Bank in check over the next three innings, but his teammates ripped the ball for seven runs in the second and more in the third while piling up a big 17-2 lead. The Eagles led 20-2 after a three-run fifth, but Lasters ripped another two-run double in the bottom of the inning to drive home another pair and make the final count 20-4.

The JEagles used eight hits and fifteen walks to rack up their twenty runs.

Renko & Knowles team to beat Cardinals 2-1

CHICAGO (AP) — Pitchers Steve Renko and Darold Knowles have something in common. They know what it is. So do managers Jim Marshall of the Chicago Cubs and Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The thing the two pitchers share is effectiveness against the Cardinals and the two put their talents to work Thursday to serve the Cubs a 2-1 triumph against the Cardinals.

Renko, whom the Cubs acquired from Montreal less than two weeks ago, gained his first victory of the season but needed seventh inning help from Knowles.

The last time Renko won a major league game was last September 18 with a 5-0, five-hitter against the Cardinals for Montreal.

"There's no special reason but I seem to pitch well against the Cardinals," said the 31-year-old righthander.

"I had good control. I threw the ball where I wanted and that's a big factor.

"I'm happy to be with the Cubs," said Renko. "I'm glad to be away from Montreal. The climate there isn't the best in the world and I didn't like the tax situation (where Americans have to pay taxes to both Canada and the United States)."

Knowles, picking up his second save in two days against the Cardinals, had one victory and five saves against them last year.

"The big secret to beating the Cardinals is getting Ted Simmons and Reggie Smith out," said Knowles. "I've had good luck against those two."

Already this year Knowles has had one victory and three saves against the Cardinals.

"I know it, I know it," said Schoendienst. "Knowles can't get anybody else out but he's tough on us. I feel sorry for Pete Falcone. He's pitched great for us but we just can't get him any runs.

"Actually, the Cubs shouldn't have had a run today. They get a hit off the glove and score in the first inning and we mess up a double play and they score the winning run in the fourth. It's brutal."

Falcone, suffering his fourth loss against two victories, gave up a leadoff single to Rick Monday and one out later, Bill Madlock singled off the heel of Falcone's glove. Jerry Morales then walked and Monday scored on a sacrifice fly by George Mitterwald.

The Cubs scored the winning run in the fourth. Morales doubled and oneout later Manny Trillo beat out a bunt single, sending Morales to third. Steve Swisher then hit what would have been an inning-ending double play to shortstop Don Kessinger but Mike Tyson dropped the throwat second with Morales scoring the winning run.

The Cardinals scored their only run in the second on a walk to Willie Crawford and singles by Hector Cruz and Tyson. Falcone then sacrificed and Lou Brock was given an intentional walk before Don Kessinger fouled out to end the inning.

Renko retired 14 men in a row before Cruz and pinch batter Ron Fairly singled in the seventh with one out. Knowles then took over.

Janet lands spot in World 600

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — "I think she realizes now that I'm not bulling her," engine-builder Ralph Moody said Thursday after Janet Guthrie became the first woman to qualify for a major stock car race.

Miss Guthrie, foiled in her recent attempts to make the Indianapolis 500 field, averaged 152.797 miles an hour in the former Chevrolet of A.J. Foyt to land the 27th starting position for Sunday's 17th annual World 600 at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

"She has proven she can drive a Grand National car and that will help her confidence," said Moody, who built Miss Guthrie's engine. He was half of the former Holman-Moody team whose cars dominated the sport for so many years. "She will get faster and be able to tell us more about the car's handling as she gets experience."

Miss Guthrie, a 38-year-old physicist from New York City, helped bump the likes of veterans Buck Baker, Bobby Isaac and David Sisco from the field. Her two-lap qualifying sprint around the 1.5-mile super speedway was the 12th quickest of the day as 15 drivers made the 40-car field and 18 others were left to vie for 10 spots Friday.

"Don't ask me about that woman driver," quipped Baker, who at age 57 is attempting to make a comeback. "She has already made a fool out of me with my prediction (of 145 m.p.h.). She's in the field and I'm not. I'm ready to believe anything. Even that she can win the race."

Tigers meet Texas A & M

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — Fast-starting Texas A&M and fast-finishing Missouri open the Midwest Regional NCAA baseball playoffs here today.

The second first round game of the day will feature the hard-hitting University of Arizona Wildcats, lead by the top hitter in the playoffs, going against the light hitting Pan American Broncs, whose pitching got them into the NCAA playoffs for the seventh straight year.

The Texas A&M Aggies opened the season with a school record 16-game winning streak and slowed somewhat before finishing the season at 34-8, good enough for second place behind the University of Texas in the Southwest Conference.

The University of Missouri Tigers, on the other hand, finished the season at 45-20 and wound up with two upset victories over the University of Oklahoma, forcing the Sooners to lose the Big Eight baseball title for the first time in five years.

The Arizona Wildcats wound up their regular season play at 44-16 and finished second behind top-ranked Arizona State in the Western AthleticConference.

Pan American, the only independent in the Midwest Regional, finished the season at 53-17 despite having a low team batting average of .280, the lowest batting average among the four playoff teams.
